Japs Assert Bombers From Europe Are In Philippines Already

Interpretation By
Kirke L. Simpson
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Tokyo reports that American medium bombers from Europe are already reaching the Philippines in force for redeployment against Japan may be somewhat premature, but no more than that. They have been darkening Atlantic skies for weeks in homing flights setting new records for mass air movements.

No official information as to their further progress westward on battle missions is available. Comrades beyond the Pacific have already set up for their reception, however, the blueprint of an aerial picket line more than 1,500 miles long flanking the whole eastern coast of the Asiatic continent at close range from Shanghai to Singapore.

Blood-drenched Okinawa on the southern doorstep of Japan's home islands is already spawning medium bomber raids on critical enemy targets ashore and at sea. Within a 500 mile sweep of its air strips lies the whole spread of the East China sea.

Southwestward medium range Okinawa based aircraft would overlap in spheres of action with General MacArthur's Luzon based planes. All Formosa and the whole southeastern sweep of the Chinese coast as well as Indo-China are in reach of American junior bombers in the Philippines. Southward their zone of action will overlap with planes from newly seized bases in northern Borneo, within 800 miles of Singapore.

In due course another stride southwestward on MacArthur's left flank to grip western Borneo could cause no surprise. Aircraft based there would be as close to Singapore as those on Okinawa are to southern Japan. It would complete the picture of total air control of eastern Sea approaches to the Asiatic continent in preparation for forthcoming moves against vir-

VON RIBBENTROP WRITES PREMIER

Sends Confidential Letter To Churchill And Eden

FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS, June 16—(AP)—Joachim von Ribbentrop has written a confidential letter to Prime Minister Churchill and Anthony Eden referring, he maintains, to "a message given to me by the fuehrer before his death."

The captured former Nazi foreign minister wrote to Field Marshal Montgomery asking him to deliver the letter intact.

Written in ink in an elegant hand script while Ribbentrop was in hiding in the Hamburg apartment of a brunette divorcee, the note to Montgomery was merely a covering letter containing no sensational information.

Ribbentrop reportedly told British security officers after his arrest Thursday in Hamburg:

"For goodness sakes, don't publish my letters until they are in the hands of those to whom they are addressed. They are addressed to certain people

CHARGE IS FACED BY LORD HAW HAW

LONDON, June 16—(AP)—William Joyce, the "Lord Haw Haw" of the Nazi radio, was charged tonight in the Bow Street police station, but the exact nature of the accusation against the renegade Englishman remained undisclosed.

Scotland Yard issued a brief statement which said only that Joyce, flown here from Brussels, "was arrested on his arrival in this country, taken to Bow Street and charged, and will appear before the magistrates on Monday, June 18.

Joyce was whisked from the airport to the state in a closed police car. Earlier Margaret White, described as his wife, had been flown to London from Brussels. Joyce and the woman were arrested recently near Flensburg, Germany, and were detained in Brussels by British authorities.

Meanwhile a dispatch from Twelfth Army Group Headquarters disclosed that on orders from General Eisenhower and other high ranking commanders a blackout had been imposed on news concerning Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop since his arrival at Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

No interviews with Von Ribbentrop or pictures of him would be permitted, officers explained, because it was feared they might affect his trial.

The official Madrid radio took the opportunity to comment that the Von Ribbentrop arrest showed that Russian reports of Hitler hiding in Spain were "as false as the one about Ribbentrop seeking refuge in the Iberian peninsula."

Other arrests announced by Twelfth Army Group Headquarters today included former Hungarian Premier Bela Imredy, taken near Innsbruck by U. S. Seventh army troops.

FRANK J. RODDY DIES SUDDENLY

Regarded As Outstanding Fire Chief; Served In Five Administrations

Frank J. Roddy, 62, fire chief of Monroe for more than 30 years and serving under five mayors during this time, died in a local sanitarium early Saturday morning. While in failing health for nearly two years, he had been confined to his bed for less than a week and his death came as a surprise and shock to a wide circle of friends. The funeral will be held with a short service at Davis-Lawhead Funeral Home, Sunday at 3 p. m. and thence to St. Matthew's Catholic Church at 3:15 p. m. The Rev. Henry W. Hubley will officiate and interment will be in the Catholic Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be from the ranks of the Monroe Fire Department as follows: Captains H. E. Roberts, J. W Blanks, R. L. Frantom, J. W. Faler, J. C. Brantley and E. M. Dortch. Honorary pallbearers will be all other members of the department and friends of the family.

Chief Roddy, regarded as one of the most capable fire chiefs that Louisiana has ever possessed, was born in Savannah, Ga., in 1883, his parents being T. J. and Mary Coughlan Roddy, both of whom had come to America from their native Ireland.

After his early schooling had been completed, Roddy went with the merchant marine for several years, only to return to his native town to learn the plumbers' trade.

Later he entered the employ of the Cumberland Telephone Company and came to Monroe in 1907 as a lineman for the company which later was taken over by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

It was while serving the telephone company that Chief Roddy first got his taste of fire and smoke and his career as a fire fighter was born. It was during a fire at the old power and light plant that the young lineman, after attending to telephone wires servicing the plant, was asked if he thought he could handle a hose line with the volunteer fire fighters. Roddy accepted the hose, stayed with the firemen until the blaze was controlled and eventually left the telephone company for a permanent place with the fire department.

In 1911 he became a paid employe of the department and under the administration of Mayor A. A. Forsythe the title of fire chief was created and bestowed upon him, in February, 1912.

Once at the head of the department he worked tirelessly to make it the best to be found in the state for a city of the size of Monroe. Early in his career, as chief he caused the department to be motorized and in 1916 a Gamewell fire alarm system was installed. In 1919, the double platoon system was inaugurated. After he became associated with the department the Monroe insurance rating was reduced from fourth to first class and the city has been fortunate in avoiding serious conflagrations, which has been due largely to the superiority of the Monroe department, it is generally believed by local citizens.

Realizing the need for more intensive, down-to-the-minute training for all members of the department, Chief Roddy was one of the chief advocates of the Louisiana State Fire College which has met for many years annually in Baton Rouge and which has served to condition firemen for their perilous tasks. However, the chief modestly declined to hold office in

'GOLD BRAID' ASKS PEACETIME DRAFT

Generals, Admirals And Secretary Of Navy Argue Necessity

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—A galaxy of star-studded and gold-braided generals and admirals led by the civilian secretary of the navy presented to congress today the armed services' arguments for peacetime draft legislation.

They were the final witnesses—except for congressmen to be heard next week—before the House post-war military policy committee which for two weeks has heard the pros and cons of universal peacetime training from more than 100 individuals and organizations.

Led by Navy Sec James V. Forrestal, who urged full peacetime preparedness as a warning to "any frustrated paperhanger anywhere who may be dreaming of world dominion," the witness included:

General of the Army George C. Marshall, who called upon opponents to offer a better preparedness plan and oppose a large peacetime standing army as "repugnant to the American people."

Fleet Adm. Ernest J. King, who declared that "in this world of realism we must keep ourselves prepared to support by realistic methods, if necessary, our idealistic hopes and efforts looking toward lasting world peace."

Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, marine commandant, who said "we can not, under any conditions, assume that the present war will end all wars," and asserted that "a trained military force is one of the most potent weapons for

SAYS JAPS GIVEN NAZI JET PLANS

Goering Asserts Hitler Decisions Were Helpful To Allies

TWELFTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, Germany, June 16.—(AP)—American interrogation officers said today Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering had told them that:

Hitler gave the Japanese the German blueprints for a jet fighter, and these plans were taken to Japan by submarine.

Germany once planned to occupy Iceland and the Azores.

He himself had unsuccessfully urged Hitler to seize Gibraltar.

Allied air power assured the success of the invasion, and he was "stunned" by the performance of U. S. long-range fighters.

Hitler ordered the "perfect" German jet fighter converted into a bomber and "in your aerial warfare you had a great ally—in the fuehrer" because of Hitler's decisions.

In the interrogations, which produced more opinions than solid facts from Goering, the one-time powerful Nazi expressed disbelief that Russia could afford to enter the war against Japan without endangering her post-war economic position, the officers said.

As for the jet fighter whose blueprints were given to the Japanese, Goering said "there is a big difference between looking at a blueprint and being able to do anything with it."

Goering was quoted as saying these factors led to Germany's defeat. Hitler's ignorance of the uses of air power; the unreliability of the Italians in

DRIVERS DECIDING ON ORDER TO WORK

SHREVEPORT, La., June 16.—(AP)—Bus drivers and mechanics of the Tri-State Transit Company who walked off their jobs throughout nine states a week ago again were considering a back-to-work order Saturday.

Meetings were being held in Shreveport and throughout the nine-state area Saturday at which union leaders reported they were pleading with the men to abandon their work stoppage. This latest series of meetings was in answer to an order issued by the Eighth regional War Labor Board in Dallas, Tex., Friday night telling the men to resume work immediately.

Full operations must be resumed by 10 a. m. Monday, the WLB ordered, adding that the men "are and have been participating in an unauthorized work stoppage which is interfering with the transportation of both military and civilian personnel."

Whether the latest WLB order would send more than 600 men back to work or whether the order would be ignored, probably resulting in government seizure of the bus lines, was being decided by meetings of the workers Saturday.

400 TO ARRIVE FOR LEAVES BEFORE GOING TO PACIFIC

By Niel Kinney

CAMP KILMER, N. J., June 16.—(AP)—Nearly 400 Louisiana and Mississippi fighting men of the 86th (Blackhawk) infantry division of the Third army are expected to arrive here Sunday to spend 30-day furloughs at their homes before redeployment for the Pacific.

The 14,289 battle-hardened enlisted men and officers of the division are arriving on four grey transports. They will be given a gala welcome amid a din of harbor whistles in the gaily-decorated port of New York.

The unit is the First American army combat division to return for deployment against Japan. The 86th division was activated in December, 1942, for World War Two and assigned to Camp Howze, Tex.

The division participated in the Louisiana maneuvers in December, 1942, in cadre strength and again in 1944, both times with the Third army.

This division, one of the last to go to the European theatre, went into action with Gen. George S. Patton's army in the south German offensive at Regensburg and made the initial Danube crossing. It left the United States in February, 1945, and was ordered to start its journey back home intact for fresh combat duty in the Pacific soon after V-E Day.

The 86th division is commanded by Maj. Gen. Harris M. Melasky.

After about 24 hours of processing at Camp Kilmer, the Mississippi-Louisiana men will depart by troop train for Camp Shelby reception center, where they will get the furloughs to visit their homes.

At Kilmer, they may telephone or wire their relatives.

The processing is carried out simply. The boys get suntans in exchange for the heavy uniform and check their souvenirs.

They are given an orientation talk and fed a sumptuous meal, including steak and ice cream. Then they have the run of the camp, for barber and tailor services, movies, athletics and a special show at Kilmer Bowl.

At the end of 30-day furloughs the soldiers will be directed to an assembly station to complete the rede-

Americans Cut Deeper Into Eight Remaining Square Miles

By Leif Erickson

GUAM, Sunday, June 17.—(AP)—The U. S. Tenth army captured the last three Japanese-held hills on southern Okinawa's high plateau Saturday with the unintentional help of enemy artillery which mistakenly shelled its own forces on one of the peaks before the Americans took it.

The 96th infantry division seized the 548-foot summit of Yuza hill, highest on the escarpment line, which the Nipponese had used effectively as an artilery position.

By nightfall the 98th was driving southwestward down the back slopes after a stiff fight against heavy mortar and machine gun fire from the dwindling Japanese garrison, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today in

TRY GERMAN FOR SHOOTING FLIER

Peter Back Makes Confession To U. S. Military Commission

AHRWEILER, Germany, June 16.—(AP)—Unemotional and in a hollow voice, 37-year-old Peter Back confession today that he shot an American flier who parachuted to earth near the village of Priest, Germany, last August.

Without a single quiver of feeling, the small town Nazi said he did it "in my excitement" and "without thinking."

The case against him was finished in short order. The military prosecutor, Maj. Theodore K. Irwin of Dallas, Tex., didn't even make a final argument.

The commission's verdict will be announced in several days by Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, along with verdicts on three others tried two weeks ago for the same crime. The maximum penalty is death by hanging.

Back, a tailor with one leg crippled by infantile parlysis, sat stiffly in the courtroom, his eyes coldly steady. He frequently consulted his German defense attorney, Franz Mehn of Trier, who also defended the other three, including Matthias Krein.

Krein, testifying against Back today, told the commission that Back, riding a motorcycle, rushed up to the trapped airman and quickly shot him twice in the head and neck. The shots did not kill him, Krein, said, so two other persons finished the flier off with a club and a hammer.

Back was a village Nazi leader. One

RATION VALUES FOR LARD ARE BOOSTED

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—Another two-point increase in ration values for lard, shortening and salad and cooking oils was ordered tonight, effective at 12:01 a. m. Sunday.

OPA, noting a continuing dwindling of supplies, announced a new value of 12 points a pound up from 10, for the second boost in a month and the fifth since the start of the year.

Most industrial fats and oil allotments are also being trimmed for the July-September quarter, the announcement said.

Current butter and margarine point values are not affected.

OPA said the fats-oils point value increases are necessary because:

1. The expected civilian supply for the third quarter is only 751,900,000 pounds, as compared with 814,200,000 pounds allocated during the present quarter.

2. Distribution of these products for civilian use is uneven, with many areas reporting they are not getting supplies equal to the amount permitted by rationing.

The growing shortage of fats and oils is reflected in the steady rise of consumer point values during the last six months.

After the start of the year, lard, shortening and salad and cooking oils were point free. They were given a value of two points a pound January 22, went to four points February 25, then kept going up gradually.

YANKS ON LUZON ADVANCE 6 MILES

Drive North Where More Than 30,000 Japanese Compressed

MAJOR DRIVE UNDER WAY TO CLEAR CAGAYAN VALLEY

By Spencer Davis

MANILA (Sunday), June 17.—(AP)—The U. S. armored spearheads drove five and six miles north today along the Cagayan valley where more than 30,000 Japanese troops are being compressed in their last major stronghold on northeastern Luzon, it was announced today.

One column of the 37th (Ohio) division seized the 4,500-foot Ipil air field and pressed on five miles north along highway No. 5—main route through the valley—to the south bank of the Ganano river, tributary of one broad Cagayan river.

A second force to the west struck along the edge of the valley over a new highway and ground out a six-mile gain despite tough resistance, the first reported since Gen. Douglas MacArthur announces yesterday that his forces had burst out 22 miles into the valley.

In the rear of the spearheads in the Orioung pass five miles from the entrance of the valley, a Japanese attempt to pinch off the advance with a road block was bloodily repulsed.

The Sixth division also was tightening the noose on the Cagayan positions with a mile and a half advance through the mountains west of the valley, and by the 33rd division, still farther west, operating in the Agno river gorge north of the summer capital of Baguio.

Still farther north, Filipino guerrillas led by Maj. Gen. Innis P. Swift of the First corps captured the road junction of Cervantes, in the west coast province of Ilocos Sur, and were only 10 airline miles from the enemy's mountain stronghold of Bontoc.

While the major drive was under

HIGH COURT TO WORK OVERTIME

Will Hold Session Monday Morning To Decide On Big Cases

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—The supreme court is expected to work overtime Monday to wind up a term already made historic by momentous decisions affecting the war effort and labor.

The black-robed justices will hold a rare morning session to begin reading decisions in more than a dozen pending cases, interrupting it at noon to hear Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's address at the Capitol.

Cases of national interest are among those awaiting decision. Included are the justice department's civil anti-trust suit against the Associated Press; litigation over the government's effort to deport Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. leader, to Australia whence he came 25 years ago; and suits to determine if certain employer-employe contracts violate the anti-trust laws.

If the justices dispose of all pending cases, most of them will take vacations before beginning a new term in October. Justice Jackson as chief United States prosecutor of war criminals likely will spend much of the summer in Europe.

Still unable to agree unanimously in most of its decisions, the court in the last eight months split 5 to 4 and 6 to 3 in many rulings.

The judicial rift showed up prominently in decisions in the war-born cases in which the court:

Japs Claim Fleet Near Balikpapen

MacArthur's Communique Says Allied Planes Bombed Gun Positions At That Place; Wiping Out Scattered Nips

By Dean Schedler

MANILA, Sunday, June 17.—(AP)—Australian forces on Borneo have driven six miles southwest down the coast from Brunei toward the Sarawak oil center of Tuotong, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today, but he left unconfirmed Tokyo radio reports that an Allied fleet was menacing the refinery port of Balikpapan on the southeast coast of Dutch Borneo.

MacArthur's communique did relate that Allied planes bombed gun positions at Balikpapan.

The thrust toward Sarawak, British-protected state which extends for 450 miles along Borneo's northwestern coast, had been reported previously by the Melbourne radio, which said the Australians were within 18 miles of Tuotong.

Confirming this advance, the communique said also that the Australians were eliminating "scattered enemy parties" around Brunei bay, where the reinvasion of Borneo began one week ago.

Four Japanese night raiders were shot down in that area. Allied bombers and fighters supported the Australian ground forces and wrecked a Japanese freighter and four patrol boats along the western coast.

Keeping pace with the march southwestward, torpedo boats shot up enemy shore positions.

The Australian Ninth division "rats of Tobruk" battled southward from their beachhead at Brunei bay after securing British north Borneo to the extent that martial law could be declared for the entire area.

Melbourne reported the Aussies were within 18 miles of the Toutong oil refinery center in Sarawak, the British protected state which extends for 450 miles along the northwest coast of Borneo.

Balikapapan is some 500 miles across the island, on the east coast, and 300 miles south of Australian-occupied Tarakan island, whose oil fields are already being reconditioned. Tarakan was invaded May 1.

There was no confirmation of the Tokyo report that a fleet of more than 20 warships was nearing Balikpapan but Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Saturday communique announced Japanese gun positions and airdromes in that area had been blasted by 76 tons of aerial bombs.

The communique said "light" Allied naval units had "carried out night operations" along the coast north of Balikpapan.

No time was specified for the bombing or naval operation. MacArthur's communiques usually follow developments by about 48 hours.

The last of north Borneo's three airfields fell ot the Allied invasion when the Australians smashed Japanese resistance at Timbalai on Labuan island at the entrance to Brunei bay. The island was invaded a week ago, at the same time the Australians landed on the mainland and pressed inland to capture Brunei town and airfield. The third airfield, Labuan, also on the island, was occupied a few hours after the invasion.

Some of Borneo's best rubber plantations are around Brunei and now in Allied hands.

ACTUAL COMBAT WILL BE SHOWN

'Here's Your Infantry' Will Bring War For Closeup Observation

"Here's Your Infantry" show is one that gives actual combat showing through a vivid picture of how our infantry attacks a Jap pillbox, just as they are doing today in the Pacific. Right before one's eyes he sees 80 overseas veterans go through with a two-hour demonstration actually firing rifles, machine guns, bazookas, trench mortars and using hand grenades and famed flamethrowers.

"Here's Your Infantry" caravan will parade through the streets of West Monroe and Monroe Monday at 2:30 p. m. and Tuesday morning the group will display a static show for public inspection. This will be on the parking lot of the old post office in Monroe, and the time will be 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. If you would like to fire a rifle or machine gun or taste some of the rations such as men in combat are fed, you should be at this static show right in town Tuesday. Overseas veterans will be on the spot to explain all that you desire to know.

Tuesday night, starting at 7:30 o'clock at Northeast Junior College stadium, the show "Here's Your Infantry" will be presented. A band concert will be the opening number and there will be a flag raising ceremony at 8 p. m. in charge of Legionnaires. At 8:30 p. m. all retail salespeople of the parish who have sold bonds of the "E" series will be presented, provided only they have sold sufficient to entitle the title of admiral.

The commander, his staff and guests of Selman Field, will also be presented. After this "Your Infantry" will give an actual eye witness attack on a Jap pillbox. A Monroe citizen, Sgt. Paul Nola, who was with the 106th division of the First army in Europe and who was captured last year and held for 103 days as prisoner of war, will take part in the demonstration.

All Boy and Girl Scouts in full uniform and all military personnel are invited to the show free of cost.

Our series "E" bond sales in Ouachita parish are still alarmingly lagging. It is urgently requested that citizens make "if necessary" personal sacrifices to buy bonds and help Ouachita to make the goal. If we get there we must average a daily sale of $25,000 in bonds for the rest of the month. Secure your tickets and see this show free of cost.

FRENCH MOB BEATS SPANISH CIVILIANS

LONDON, June 16.—(AP)—A French mob, armed with iron rods and bottles, created today an international incident by attacking a train filled with Spanish civilians, and reports said casualties ranged from 20 dead to 361 injured.

The French attackers apparently believed the train was filled with troops of the Spanish Blue division, which fought alongside the Germans on the Russian front.

Reports on the number and severity of casualties varied enormously. The French government, opening an official investigation, said only six persons had been injured. But other Paris reports said 20 persons had been stoned to death and in Switzerland, where the train arrived after turning back from France, 61 persons were described as seriously injured, 300 were said to be slightly hurt and 43 were reported missing. In Madrid there were reports that eight had been killed.

The Spanish foreign minister demanded an immediate explanation of the incident from the French government.

The incident took place at Chambery station, East of Lyon, as the train stopped in its journey across southern France toward the Spanish frontier.

The Swiss territorial command said the French mob reportedly stoned the train and then attacked through broken windows. The Spanish refugees, Swiss reports added, were said to have been beaten by iron rods, with clubs, and bottles and the clothing was torn off many Spaniards.

Spanish Foreign Minister Jose Felix De Lequerica told correspondents in Madrid that the special train carried more than 500 Spaniards who had worked in German labor camps under a Spanish-German agreement. Their return to Spain had been negotiated with the French government, which had agreed to "guarantee" the transit of the Spaniards, Lequerica said.

KAISER'S GRANDSON SAYS F. D. R. SOUGHT PEACE AID

By Louis P. Lochner

(Copyright 1945 by the Associated Press)

BAD KISSINGEN, Bavaria, June 16—(AP)—Prince Louis Ferdinand Hohenzollern, grandson of the last kaiser, asserts that he served as messenger in a confidential move by the late President Roosevelt in 1938 to preserve peace.

He says that the president, by the early autumn of 1938, was so worried concerning the international situation and the possibility of a World war that he took measures to inform the German government of his willingness to meet Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini and Neville Chamberlain, then Britain's prime minister, in the Azores for a conference.

(In Washington President Roosevelt's secretaries and former Undersecretary Sumner Welles said they never had heard of the reported message. Mrs. Roosevelt, through her secretary, said at Hyde Park, N. Y., that she had no comment.

The Hohenzollern prince, a one-time employe of the Ford company in Detroit, who knew Mr. Roosevelt from the time the latter was governor of New York, says the president chose him as his emissary on this occasion.

He first told me of this mission in 1938, at that time I promised to keep it confidential (Ochner was chief of the former AP bureau in Berlin up to the time of Pearl Harbor). But with President Roosevelt dead, Hitler reported dead and his foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, now in Allied hands, Prince Louis Ferdinand has agreed that there is no longer any reason for withholding this interesting detail of recent history.

The prince, now 37, is the second son of the crown prince of World War One days, Frederick Wilhelm More or less a refugee, he is living in modest comfort with his wife, the former Russian Grand Duchess Kyra, and four children, in the home of a former physician to the late kaiser.

This is the story of the Roosevelt peace gesture as he tells it:

When he and his bride went on their honeymoon trip around the world in 1938 they were house guests of the Roosevelts and he had many

SGT. H. TAYLOR TELLS OF WAR

Gives Story Of Invasion Of Saipan; Tells Of Hard Fighting

Sgt Henry R Taylor of Monroe, in a letter to his mother, tells of the Saipan landing in part as follows: "The night before the day we were to hit we circle dthe two islands Tinian and Saipan. We could see the flashes of our guns as the battlewagons and cruisers did their pre-landing bombardment. At daybreak next morning all were out on deck to get a glimpse of the place we were soon to land. It was a pretty high rock and looked like most any of the Hawaiian Islands from the water. Not long after we were loaded into amphibian tractors. We circled in the water and every so often we would move in a little closer to shore. Were still quite a way out. All this time the destroyers, cruisers and battlewagons were giving the beach a real pounding. Also the planes were strafing and dropping bombs. There wasn't a silent moment. The battlewagons would move in a little and the whole ship would look like it was afire. We watched the first and second waves take off for the beach and soon we followed. I was in a liason party for an artillery battalion. We went in with the infantry.

SGT. H. R. TAYLOR

"About 1,000 yards from the beach there was a coral reef that we had to cross. The water on the inside was shallow and the rock pretty rough. After we had crossed, I looked back and could see that the reef was getting a good pounding with light artillery and mortars.

"When we hit the beach we got out and hit the sand and started to dig in. You would be surprised how much dirt a guy can move in such a short time when mortar shells are bursting all around. The enemy continued to pound the beach with mortars and they had the range too.

"On the second night they made a big counterattack. I heard them yelling like mad to each other and then I heard a bugle blow. They yelled some more and then charged. It was a real din with all the guns chattering. They didn't do much good and we moved in.

"The next excitement was up on the north end of the island when the army took over and marines were resting. The enemy pulled a big counterattack, with quite a few tanks. One of our artillery battalions took a real beating. We lost a lot of ground but the infantry went back on the lines again and the marines pushed right on to the end of the island and then returned it to the army again. There was little resistance so the army managed to hold out. I can't say that all the army does not fight, but the guys that were with us were as useless as a sidesaddle on a hog."

MAN, BOY DROWN IN LAKE PONTCHARTRAIN

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—(AP)—A navy enlisted man and a three year old boy drowned in Lake Ponchatrain yesterday in separate accidents.

Dr Philip Montlepre, assistant Orleans parish coroner, said Seaman 2 c John B Wells III, of New Orleans, was drowned after he dived from a skiff about 100 yards from the seawall. About an hour later Charles P Saltzman, 3, of East End, was drowned near his home while he and other children were playing in two feet of water, the official said.

Both deaths were classified as accidental drowning.

ONLY ONE WIFE IS TAX-EXEMPT

Man Who Marries Second Can Claim Exemption On One

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—As far as the tax collector is concerned, a man can have only one wife in one year.

This ruling was made by the Bureau of International Revenue in a case from Missouri.

The taxpayer's wife died in 1944 and he remarried within the year, claiming each of the wives as a dependent. The bureau said, in effect, that it limited wives to one a year, and allowed only one $500 exemption, instead of two.

In another case, the bureau ruled that a man's mother-in-law remains his mother-in-law even if his wife, the mother-in-law's daughter, dies.

This means that a taxpayer who claimed his mother-in-law as a dependent may continue to do so, even after his wife's death, if he provides her principal support.

There has been much ado about whether dad can claim as a dependent a son inducted into service, and the bureau has come up with that answer, too.

If the son was inducted after July 1 of a year, the bureau is willing to concede that dad provides his principal support. But if the induction occurred before July 1, the answer is no, unless dad can provide that he spent more on his son than the government did.

A taxpayer wanted to know whether he could claim as a dependent the nephew of his deceased wife. Answer: No. The bureau took the position that a wife's nephew is not her husband's nephew.

Numerous taxpayers who support children other than their own, including refugees, have asked whether they can claim them as dependants. The bureau said no, unless they were legally adopted.

Here is another actual case: A youth earned $450 last year, but put it all in war bonds. The bureau said it was all right, under the circumstances, for the father to claim the full $500 exemption. (Had junior earned $50 more, dad could have claimed no exemption, regardless of what junior did with his money.)

In still another ruling, the bureau allowed a full $500 exemption for a child which lived only a few hours after birth. No exemption, however, will be allowed for a still birth.

All the rulings resulted from changes in the tax laws for the 1944 tax year.

ARMY CHAPLAIN

Capt. Estus A. Autrey, army chaplain, whose home is at 409 Mill street, West Monroe, brother of Rev. C. E. Autrey, pastor of the First Baptist Church in West Monroe, has just returned from overseas where he served on the continent with the 78th fighter group. He has been in armed service three years and previously was pastor of the First Baptist Church in Fulton, Ky. He will preach at the Ridge Avenue Baptist Church, West Monroe, at 11 a. m. today and in the evening at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe.

SGT. HOLDSWORTH GETS BRONZE STAR

Sgt. Eugene F. Holdsworth, of 1114 South Second, Monroe, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious achievement in action near Gonzano, Italy, in June, 1944 according to information received by his wife Mrs. Roberta Holdsworth from the 45th division of the Seventh army in Germany.

The citation accompanying the award said: "In the attack out of the Anzio beachhead, Sgt. Holdsworth's battalion secured critical terrain to which the main routes available for supply were mined. In order to support the attack, it was mandatory that adequate supply routes be cleared of mines immediately. Although mortar and artillery fire was falling in the area, Sgt. Holdsworth, in charge of a mine clearing squad, promptly and voluntarily assumed responsibility for clearing a supply route. He directed the sweeping of a road and nearby trail and a route connecting the two. Through Sgt. Holdsworth's energy and courage, safe routes were quickly established over which vital supplies were able to reach his battalion."

Sgt. Holdsworth has been in the army since March, 1942. He went overseas in June, 1943, and currently is a member of anti-tank company of the 179th infantry regiment.

In addition to the Bronze Star, he also wears the Combat Infantryman Badge and six battle stars on his campaign ribbon.

CHANGES SOUGHT IN AIRPORT BILL

Chamber Urges Elimination Of 'Hit-Or-Miss' Aid

Amendments to the McCarran Federal-Aid Airport Bill in the Senate and the Lea Bill in the House to require channeling of all Federal Aid for the building of local airports exclusively through the States was requested yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce Public Affairs Committee. The Committee also urged an elimination of the present hit-or-miss methods of granting Federal Aid to local airports, and requested that Federal Aid for airport construction be allocated to the various states on the same basis that it has been allocated for highway construction since 1922. These recommendations were sent to Congressman McKenzie, Senators Ellender and Overton and to all members of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

"If this fair and equitable method of disbursing Federal Aid for local airport construction is adopted, such towns as Bastrop, Ruston, Winnsboro and other neighboring communities Monroe will stand a much bett chance of getting Federal Aid in build ing airports to meet their postw needs, than if they have to appeal d rect to Congress," the committee re commendation to our representatives Congress stated. It was the opini of the committee that every town one thousand population or more northeast Louisiana would need ar extensively use an airport after t war. Unless these communities ca get Federal Aid in providing the airports, they may not provide the with the result that they will be d nied the benefit of air travel, and c section will not progress in the ne air age that is inevitable after the wa

The committee urges civic leaders all towns in northeast Louisiana begin thinking and planning for a l cal airport after the war. Air trave air mail and express will be as nece sary after the war to these commun ties as highway and rail travel ha been in the past.

SCHOLARSHIPS GIVEN STUDENTS

122 Recent Graduates Of High Schools Receive Tech Awards

RUSTON, La., June 16.—(Special)—Honor scholarships remitting registration fees for two trimesters at Louisiana Tech have been granted 122 recent graduates of approved high schools in the state, according to an announcement from the office of President Claybrook Cottingham.

Given annually to high school students of Louisiana who finish in the upper 25 per cent of their respective graduating classes, the scholarships are subject to renewal at the beginning of each trimester following the first two terms provided the recipient maintains a B or better average.

Selection of each recipient is made by his high school authorities, who are empowered to award no more than one scholarship to a member of their graduating class.

Scholarships awarded this year will be effective at the beginning of the summer trimester, on July 2.

Emphasizing that the number of scholarships granted so far is incomplete, Mrs. Fairy C. McBride, secretary to the president, pointed out that some high schools have not as yet selected recipients for the award.

Winners of the Tech scholarships for 1945 are, in part, as follows:

Carmen Abney, Bunkie; Bill L. Allstock, Benson; Mary Chena Akin, Sibley; Johnette Anthony, Vivian; Alice Ruth Ardoni, Plaucheville; Bobbie Ruth Andrews, Chatham.

SELLERS OF BONDS ADVANCE IN RANK

The sale of Series "E" Bonds by retail salespeople continues with new advancements in naval task force ranks, a survey of the Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce revealed yesterday. Those salespeople who have attained the higher ranks follow: Rear Admiral—Mrs. Mollie Michael, Palace; vice-admiral—Mrs. Blanche Florsheim, Palace, Mrs. Mollie Abrams, Fields, Mrs. Helen McLaughlin, Style Shop, Mrs. W. L. Lohman, Sig Haas & Son; admiral—Mrs Marie Ober, Palace; fleet admiral—Ethel N. Jackson, Standard Office Supply, Lola Simmermaker, Silversteins, Mrs. Fay P. Heard, Palace, Miss Jennie Smith, Palace, Miss Maibel Hood, Palace.

The Palace led the field in total amount of Series "E" bond sales with a total of $100,062.50.

All salespeople who have attained the rank of rear admiral will be honor guests at the "This is Your Infantry" show Tuesday night, June 19, at the Junior College Stadium and will be given special reserve seats in the box seat area of the grandstand, it was jointly announced by Co-Chairmen C. D. Oakley and S. J. Rogers of the Ouachita Parish War Finance Committee.

All merchants of the Twin Cities are requested to display their flags on the streets on Monday and Tuesday of this week, in advance of Tuesday night's Infantry show, stated G. L. Holloway, chairman of the merchant's division of the Chamber of Commerce.

CHAMBER HEADS TO HEAR HODSON LEWIS

The importance of local Chambers of Commerce participating in national legislation will be the subject of an address to be delivered by D. Hodson Lewis, manager, southwestern division, Chamber of Commerce of the U. S., before a meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Junior Chamber of Commerce and the chamber's public affairs committee Monday night, June 18, in the Cameo Room, Hotel Virginia, at 7:30 p. m., it was announced yesterday by Wood Thompson, chamber president.

The board of directors and public affairs committee of the Ruston Chamber of Commerce will also attend the meeting, headed by Amos Ford, Ruston chamber president, Thompson stated.

One of the most important factors which will affect American business and industry in the postwar period will be laws passed by Congress and how these laws affect business, Thompson stated Mr. Lewis is well informed on national legislative matters, and his address is looked forward to with keen interest, Thompson observed. President Thompson expressed pleasure over the prospect of having our neighbors and friends from Ruston in attendance at the meeting. He urges all of the chamber's directors to be present.

MISSION WORKER TO ADDRESS CLASS

Clifford E Nobes, Presbyterian missionary in the Philippines for many years and who after exciting war experiences has been able with his family to return to the States, will address the members of the Frank Stubbs Bible class at the First Presbyterian Church here, Sunday at 9:45 a. m. in the Paramount theater. An invitation is extended to men of the city to attend.

The Monroe Morning World is an independent newspaper. It prints the news impartially. It supports what it believes to be right. It opposes what it believes to be wrong, without regard to party politics.

The Nuisance Continues

Monroe has an anti-noise ordinance on its statute books but apparently everyone has forgotten that it's there since its adoption several years ago following a publicity campaign which resulted in an effort to stop such disturbances. Shortly after its passage, the law was enforced, but not now.

It's bad enough to have your eardrums blasted in the daytime, but it becomes intolerable when a person can't sleep at night because of almost continuous blowing of automobile horns and mill whistles. The chief offenders operate around midnight and between 5 a. m. and 7 a. m.

Recently a number of guests at downtown hotels—both permanent and transient—have been complaining of the din raised by persons who seemingly have their fingers handcuffed to their automobile horns. These persons, an investigation revealed, are either leaving the downtown cocktail lounges or are driving by to pick up friends who are leaving. In the latter instance, the driver sits on the horn to notify those inside that he's there—and nine times out of ten, the folks inside can't hear him or if they did, they wouldn't recognize the toot.

Then when this din subsides, the mill whistles pick up around 5 a. m., and the nightmare starts all over again. At 5, 5:30, 6, 7 and 8 o'clock, with perhaps a few extra blasts thrown in, the whistles blow. By 8 o'clock, of course, most people are up and about, but there are lots of us who don't exactly relish being disturbed at 5 a. m.

A visitor here last week made a most intelligent comment on this angle of the noise nuisance.

"Monroe is a progressive, modern city," he said, "yet you're still summoning mill hands to work by blowing whistles. That was the usual practice some forty or fifty years ago, but it seems to me that Monroe should have outgrown it by now."

We realize that there aren't enough police officers to arrest every persistent horn-blower but we do believe that a few fines levied for violation of our anti-noise ordinance would go a long way in eradicating this nuisance.

CHIEF RODDY

The community has lost a most efficient public servant and a true friend in Frank Roddy, chief of the Monroe fire department, whose death occurred yesterday morning after a long illness.

Chief Roddy had been a member of the local department for 33 years, and was the oldest chief in point of service in the state. Up to the last, his alert mind and his seemingly inexhaustible energy amazed his associates, whose admiration and respect for him was unbounded.

Frank Roddy not only was the guiding force in modernizing the Monroe department, but he was a leader in the state and his counsel was sought by prominent fire prevention experts and agencies in the nation. It was he who first suggested and later directed the establishment of the state fire college which is held annually at Baton Rouge.

Chief Roddy's devotion to duty led him to make many sacrifices in his later years, sacrifices which many a younger man would hesitate to make. His record as head of one of the city's most outstanding departments is outstanding.

Only when his health became seriously impaired did he agree to leave his post here and go to Colorado for treatment. He remained there for more than a year, and should have stayed longer, but his desire to return to Monroe to continue his service to the people he loved was dominant at all times, and finally he came back, despite the risk involved.

The entire community has lost an efficient administrator, and everyone who knew him will mourn the departure of a true friend, for that's the kind of man he was. To his family goes the sympathy of all of us, but their grief should be tempered with the thought that here was a man whose job was well done and whose reward in life was the friendship and admiration of everyone.

FATHER'S DAY

It is fitting that on at least one day out of 365 the person who is politely named the "head of the house" should come in for some small measure of recognition. It is a good idea to have one day on which father, daddy, dad, pop, pater, the old man, the governor, or whatever he may be called, can sleep late, have breakfast in bed if that is his whim, get the family auto with no argument (even if the tank is empty), play golf or fish or just loaf—in other words, he can be king, if only for a day.

But Father's Day in wartime gives rise to more serious thoughts. It will not be possible for some fathers to receive the tribute of their families this year. For these fathers must, even on the day which is dedicated to them, continue their task of killing, of preparing to kill, or of making the machines to kill. It is a human paradox that father must meet father in battle and kill or be killed.

In China onions grow to a length of three feet, it is revealed, which should make them the most authoritative vegetable in any garden.

Premier Suzuki, reporting to the emperor, described Japan's war situation as intensified. And it will become more so.

Among other disadvantages of the dictator business is the fact that there is no future to it.

Presumably, when partaking of that bread made from sawdust, the Japs just saw off a piece.

Hirohito missed congratulations from Hitler and Mussolini on his forty-fourth birthday.

It is doubtful whether Japan will deem it worthwhile to start in the "secret weapon" business where Germany quit.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, June 16. — Hollywood's latest epidemic is lymph fever little known, serious, hard to cure . . . Ha. MGM bosses, refuting rumors they may suspend Van Johnson because of a salary feud, say it has never been "necessary" to suspend an MGM player. How about Hedy Lamarr, under contract but off the payroll for a year? . . . Lina Romay is helping Bill (Donna Reed's ex) Tuttle tote his torch . . . Abbott and Costello will p. a. in New York's Roxy Theatre for the same wage (reputedly $20,000) that Costello was booked for, as a single, during their recent separation.

Gene Autry, due back in civvies any minute, has teamed with Ray Whitley to compose and publish music . . . With June Allyson sidelining Dick Powell's screen tests at RKO for three full days, July 14th, the day he gets his final divorce decree, looks like an important date . . . John Loder thanked Hedy Lamarr for that baby daughter with a 9-karat solitaire . . . Wotzis about Garbo confiding to pals that she will star in a Boston stage play, come fall? . . . "The Gene Tierney Bathing Suit Club" (Miami), organized when she wore a swim suit in her first film, will get a new lease on life when she dons water scanties again for "Leave Her To Heaven."

Is Warner Brothers instigating the current barrage against Hays Office censorship in magazines and books? . . . MGM's Tom Trout will soon wed his hometown sweetheart, Dorothy Gallagher of St. Louis . . . Maybe Bing Crosby can't pick winning nags but his ma can; she hasn't had a losing day since Santa Anita re-opened . . . In shoal water: The Murray Korman-Patricia (WB starlet) Farrell marriage . . . Al Jolson's doctor has banned radio appearances for the Mammy singer . . . Gloria Vanderbilt has scored a solid hit with neighbors of hubby Leopold Stokowski.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week, RKO-International's "Along Came Jones" (Gary Cooper-Loretta Young). Something different in Western epics; as refreshing as a vacation in the wide open spaces . . . RECOMMENDED: Paramount's "The Incendiary Blonde" (Betty Hutton-Arturo de Cordova-Charles Ruggles). The Roaring Twenties furnish background for fast-moving drama that will kindle a box-office blaze . . . United Artists' "Bedside Manner" (John Carroll-Ruth Hussey). Tailored for laughs, and a perfect fit . . . SO-SO: Paramount's "One Exciting Night" (William Gargan-Ann Savage-Leo Gorcey). If you're easily excited . . . Republic's "Santa Fe Saddlemates" (Sunset Carson-Linda Sterling). Western heroics with lots of bang-bang . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Betty Hutton in "The Incendiary Blonde." An habitual laughmaker scores a dramatic bull's eye.

I've heard studio strikers charge that the movie companies deliberately built up big back logs of pictures in preparation for the current walkout. Then, feeling sure that they could maintain release schedules, precipitated the strike. If there's any truth in that accusation (and I, for one, doubt it) the producers are paying a heavy price for their preparedness. Many of the films still awaiting exhibition dates are war pictures, and folks, I've talked to are unanimous in declaring that they're fed up with that kind of "entertainment." Other movies, produced months ago but still unseen, have been outmoded by the pressure of news events. "The Road to Utopia," co-starring Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, will do for an example. So many of the gags in that picture hinged upon topics current during its production, but now passe, that thousands of feet will have to be reshot.

I may be short-sighted, but I cannot understand the War Department's idea in inviting studio bigwigs on a tour of Germany. We're all convinced, by now, that the Nazis indulged in all sorts of sadistic cruelties. We don't want to suffer through another deluge of movies predicated on that theme and since the screen is the only medium by which picture producers can communicate their thoughts, their European junket, at the taxpayers' expense, is merely another waste of public funds. There is one trip for which I'd gladly contribute, however. Why not send a few of our representative Hollywood Communists on a tour of Russia? It might dilute their enthusiasm enough to save us from some of the pro-Red pictures now hanging over our heads.

Random thought: If more of our glamour boys would try working like dogs, they wouldn't have so much time to play at being wolves.

Henry has been home for a week, and I have worked diligently to get him to do a guest column for me. He has used every known excuse—military security, sore fingers, jungle rot, battle fatigue, inability to think, and, finally, pure laziness. However, as I sank to the floor from exhaustion trying to get him to write one, he said, in honeyed tones "All right, sweetheart, it'll be a pleasure to write you a blankety-blank-blank column." From here on out it's his.

This column is not for Jean, and it's not for you. It's written for the men I beat home. I want it to serve as a sort of guide book for them.

Boys, wear all your ribbons when you greet the girl, the wife, or the family. They love them.

It was raining when I got off the train in Washington. Cold, too. I was shivering, and had my field jacket zippered up to my neck over a set of class B khakis.

Jean: Where are your ribbons?

Henry: On my shirt under my jacket.

Jean: Take the jacket off. Right now. No, quit arguing. Take it off.

Henry (sternly): Okay.

From that moment to this, she has explained my ribbons (and I don't have many) to everyone who happens to glance my way.

"Yes, that purple one is the Purple Heart. They gave him up. Right through the head, I think. A mortar shell. But he fought back and lived. That red, white and blue one? He got that for liberating the Philippines." And so on and so on.

The presidential unit citation she tells everyone was given me by the president, personally.

Boys, don't worry about your language when you get home. I know how all of us, having lived in a slightly primitive manner for a long time, with only soldiers as companions, wondered if we would be able to talk without offending—without using the language of the GI. I sweated that out flying home. Quit sweating. Once you reach home, once you are again with sweet and lovely people, you lose all that roughness. Honest, you'll find yourself less profane than when you went away. And your chow line manners will drop away, too. You'll find yourself outdoing Emily Post—without thinking. You haven't seated a woman at a table for three years—so, you'll seat three.

Remember how we used to knock ourselves out thinking about the food we wanted when we got home. Shrimp with just the right sauce. Lemon meringue pie a foot deep. Steaks that covered the whole plate. Well, you won't be able to eat it at first. I have been home ten days and I still just nibble at food. The ones that care for me serve everything. And they are a little bit hurt. I just can't eat it. A guy's stomach shrinks, I guess.

This ends the guest column. I am quite sure this is the worst guest column ever written by anybody. But when I am in New York, where there are thousands of stores that sell the sort of stuff that officers got by "fat cat," I just can't get my heart in a typewriter. After all, a man gets tired of jungle juice, torpedo juice, GI alky, tuba, bust, and all those other Seeing Eye Dog sort of things.

News BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Strictly Prohibited)

WASHINGTON, June 16 — Great hopes are daily expressed for new San Francisco results to establish genuine peace.

The air is filled with fresh efforts and advice to design a living relationship with Russia.

The world is struggling toward peace across the front pages from columns 1 to 8 these days with problems of Poland, veto powers, World Courts and small nations.

But the soundest commentary on how much has been accomplished—how far we have been able to go—lies behind a one-sentence report that Navy Secretary James Forrestal has been at the White House several times lately.

It can be said the navy is working up a new program for post-war defense power and the authorities from the top down (and I mean the White House as well as the Navy Department) already have decided there is not to be much economy in their naval planning.

Details well may come into the category of secrets and legitimately are subject to voluntary censorship. Yet it is no secret this nation will wind up this war with a navy much stronger than the combined fleets afloat in all other nations.

I published sometime back an estimate that our navy would be 5 to 1 over Britain by the end. Since then the British have gone into warship building, I understand. But the estimate still holds good, at least as a broad numerical picture of our relative prospective power on the high seas.

Ours will be even more than a two-ocean navy, and with its great acceleration in flying power, already is measured by some experts as a three-ocean force. (You can name the third ocean).

Two good naval bases in the Philippines also are being provided by naval authorities. Maryland's Senator Tydings, who has returned from a Pacific trip, says the Filipinos are anxious for us to have these and any others we want, in view of their disastrous experience from the Japanese invasion.

A good many Senators also want to see us get the Jap island bases in the Pacific, and they have their eye especially on Truk (which we have not yet captured).

This is in the trusteeship mill at San Francisco—the operation of which might well be observed from now on, in the light of the established prospect that our navy is to be larger than all others combined and must therefore weigh the responsibility of the seas on her prow.

The hearings of the special House committee on the youth draft proposals of the army also might be classified by some as a classic commentary on how far we have been able to go in the struggle toward peace—but this is an entirely different proposition.

In the first place, Mr. Truman has said nothing about it. Questions at press conferences as to whether he favored the army program to take every boy away from his home for a year in the army, have brought no commitment (Mr. Roosevelt favored the plan).

In the second place, Congress is paying but little attention to the Woodrum hearings. They are generally considered as an airing of pentup steam on a high-running subject. No action is expected anytime soon.

Some publicity impetus may have been furnished by Russia's decision to draft even boys down to 14 and 15 years for similar training, although few of the legislators are inclined to measure our needs against Russia's, or fall into the despairing anticipations of such a conflict.

I think there is a reasonable general official viewpoint here on that subject, which does not expect war, sincerely wants a living arrangement which will establish peace, but also wants American defense.

The Woodrum hearings thus far have developed only two sides to the youth draft question, the army's and the side of those who are against any military training. A third un-heard side advocates the best possible military training under Democratic methods, without a draft and without removing the boys from their homes.

It would build up the National Guard into a real guard of the nation, give it tanks, planes and money; move military education into the schools, both high schools and colleges; give each section of the country an Annapolis and a West Point of its own, and otherwise promote the Democratic methods of raising and maintaining whatever defense force is necessary.

I suspect Mr. Truman may like the latter method, especially as he himself is a National Guard man and a reserve officer. Indeed, as Senator, he fought against army disregard of the National Guard and the slighting of one of his friends in the matter of an appointment to a generalship.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture: Acts 11:19-26; 13:1-3; I Timothy; Hebrews; I Peter 4:7-5:4.
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

In the early history of Israel the religion of the faithful was constantly subject to the allurements of idolatry, and the immoral practices associated with the idolatry of the surrounding peoples. When Greece became dominant through the world conquests of Alexander the Great, effort was made to corrupt the religion of Judaism by the infiltration of Grecian pagan ideas and practices. It was against this that the Maccabees made their valiant fight, and that many of the Jews were faithful despite cruel persecution. Through defeat, exile, and dispersion the Jewish people had learned their lesson. It was a purified remnant that came back to Jerusalem from Babylon, and Jews scattered throughout the ancient world, instead of succumbing to the pagan life around them, cherished the more the religion of their fathers and of their homeland, worshipping, wherever they were, with their faces toward Jerusalem.

Many Gentiles, reacting against the moral laxity and licentiousness of their pagan environment, and observing Judaism's emphasis upon the moral law, were converts of Judaism. In this way among devout Jews and Gentiles barriers were established against paganism that made the work of the Christian church and its growth easier.

But the real power of the church was in the faith and zeal of the Christian disciples. The Apostles took the commission to go into all the world and preach the gospel with deep seriousness and greatest of all from the standpoint of missionary fervor and achievement was the new Apostle, Paul. This remarkable man, who had lived in all good conscience from his youth, and who in his conscientious zeal had persecuted the Christians, when he perceived the truth of the new way became as earnest in his propagandism for his new-found faith. Perhaps his zeal was even greater because he realized the evil he had done in his ignorance and intolerance, and he had to exert himself as a Christian all the harder to undo the evil of those former years.

It was symbolic of the work and purpose of the Christian church that the disciples should have been first called Christians at Antioch. Antioch in Syria was one of 16 Antiochs in the ancient world, which the conqueror Seleucus Nakator built and named in honor of his father. At the time of the early church it was a gorgeous and beautiful city, 14 miles from the sea on the navigable river, the Orontes. Its splendor is suggested by the fact that a double-colonnaded corso ran from east to west of the city for five miles in a straight line, and in wet weather the populace could walk from end to end under cover. Trees, flowers, and fountains adorned the promenade.

But it was a wicked and licentious city, so much so that when moral degradation reached a low point in Rome, Juvenal wrote that "the Orontes had flowed into the Tiber." Now the Christian church exists, not for the enjoyment and edification of its own members alone, but to minister the gospel, and bring salvation to a lost world. It was fitting that in a corrupt city of 500,000 people, the disciples should have been called Christians. The name befitted their character and their purpose. It is where sin abounds that grace is needed.

IRON WORKER KILLS WIFE AND HIMSELF

LAKE CHARLES, La., June 16.—(AP)—Sheriff Henry Reid said today that Wilfred Leboeuf, 37-year-old iron worker, shot and killed his estranged wife, Edna, 29, and then committed suicide with the same gun in a tourist court cabin south of here early last night.

Mrs. Leboeuf, a waitress, was shot through the left breast and forehead and her husband through the left temple, Reid said. A 38-caliber old-fashioned Iver Johnson revolver was found clutched in his hand.

Officers found the bodies on a bed in the cabin where Mrs. Leboeuf lived with her sister and another woman. Mrs. Leboeuf had started separation proceedings several days ago, Reid said.

The Leboeufs are survived by a five-year-old son who has been living for several months at the home of a friend.

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK—Immediate problem: How to keep mechanical equipment to keep America running, and how to get the money to pay for it.

Being no over-all genius but a mere customer who writes, I'm wondering whether it's not about time to begin turning out in considerable quantities those washing machines, sewing machines, and taxicabs we've been wearing out since Pearl Harbor.

And would or wouldn't it be a good idea to mine some coal for domestic consumption, instead of supporting strikers?

While writing embossed documents about the rights of man, would or would not it be a good idea to write in a very brief paragraph to the effect that he who will not work shall not eat, so long as there is work to be done?

Odd-looking girls and women still parade New York streets with signs and slogans advertising Soviet Russia and its ideals.

No odd-lookers are parading the streets of Moscow, with banners advertising the advantages of American capitalism and culture.

Let us have reciprocal relations with Russia.

I'm all for it. For every anti-American paper and pamphlet, for every issue of the New York Post and P. M. and the Chicago Sun published in this country, let us have a capitalistic, pro-American publication in Russia.

Let us have this arranged by treaty. Joe would never break a treaty.

Beauty, it seems to me, may be found where it is sought.

Zela Ivey, of Crawfordsville, Ind., tells me of a jimson weed which she calls angel's trumpet. It grows in her yard, and she sends the beautiful flowers to sick friends, and to churches, to adorn the altars.

I remember the plant as the jimson weed, as it grew in the barnyard of the farm which was my boyhood home. It was permitted to grow because of our curiosity about it. Hired men, bringing in sea-rumors from the quarters of the earth, old us of the poisonus nature of the plant, and of how a certain medicine, maybe for rheumatism, could be made of the poison root of it.

The blossoms, looking like lovely trumpets, were never picked, because we were afraid of them. Their fragrance was considered a vile smell.

Hasty research tells me that it was originally called, in this country, the Jamestown weed, from Jamestown, Va., where it was first discovered. It is semi-tropical, but now acclimated in many parts of the United States.

My memory has to do with the extremely long root of the plant. My brother Van dug busily for a week of spare time, to get all of the root of the jimson weed that grew back of the chicken coop, because Wiseacre Harry Slade, when intoxicated, told him that the root would cure almost anything, provided you got all of it. That was rural folklore at its best.

Dried leaves of the jimson weed are used in medicine. From them comes the drug called atropine, with which quacks are wont to blind patients. They have their receptionists, disguised as nurses, drop it into the eyes of waiting patients, so they may examine the eyes more easily and more quickly, also more profitably. The effect is paralysis of certain important nerves and muscles, from which many patients get the blindness called glaucoma.

Quacks will please refrain from writing me about this practice, defending it. I'm one of the victims. Also, I have investigated it far more thoroughly than any of the quacks.

Five years imprisonment in solitary, dark cells, should be the minimum punishment for any so-called doctor who blinds a patient with the deadly juice of the jimson weed.

FOSTER ACQUITTED AT COURT-MARTIAL

A general court martial convening at Selman field Thursday acquitted T Sgt. Curtis N. Foster, combat veteran from Calhoun, La., of a manslaughter charge in connection with the death last May 6 of T/Sgt. Charles T. Pouncey, another overseas veteran from Downsville, La., it was announced yesterday at the local field. (The court martial story was cleared only yesterday from the field.)

The verdict is subject to review by higher headquarters of Central Flying Command, Randolph Field, Tex., of which Selman field is a unit.

Foster, who was defended by George Wesley Smith, Monroe attorney, was charged with manslaughter under the 93rd Article of War.

Both Pouncey and Foster were stationed at Selman field when an altercation between the two men occurred during a party in Monroe. Blows were exchanged and Pouncey was removed to a hospital where he later died, authorities said.

NEARLY ALL SUGAR REQUESTS FILLED

At the close of business Saturday, practically all applications for canning sugar that had been filed with the Ouachita War Price and Rationing Board had been filled, and the ration mailed.

An astonishingly large number of canning sugar rations have already been returned to the local office, on account of inadequate mailing addresses. Since, with few exceptions, the addresses are made out by the applications themselves, this is surprising. Since we do not know what further steps to take to insure delivery of these rations, they are filed in this office, to be called for.

All applicants who do not receive their rations by Wednesday, June 20, are invited to call at this office and make inquiry, which will receive prompt and courteous attention.

The ration board, as well as the personnel of the office, wishes to go on record in an expression of appreciation of the attitude of the good people of Ouachita parish during these rather trying days, and to assure them that every effort is being made to see that the distribution of canning sugar in Ouachita parish will be on a fair and equitable basis, and that all applicants will be accorded the same treatment.

Building Permits

Permission was granted to W. J. Riley to erect a two story brick and concrete building to be used for an office and warehouse on Louisville avenue. The warehouse will consist of one story and the office of two stories. Ford, Bacon and Davis will do the building.

WORKER PROTECTION

New asbestos aprons, cape sleeves, bibs, leggins and coats are being issued by the American Standards Association for use by workers in steel mills and foundries to protect them from injury in case of sudden splashes or spills of molten metals. Slow to scorch, the new garments will give the workers time to disrobe before the hot metal reaches their bodies.

LETTER CARRIER PAY BOOST SEEN

Senate Likely To Follow House In Approving Increase

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—No one ever gets mad at letter carriers.

You should have heard Congressmen say nice things about them last month. They jumped up, one after another, to make a speech in favor of giving postal employes a raise.

They were in so much agreement on it that the vote was 361 to 1. Then the bill went over to the Senate. The Senate committee on postoffices and post roads had their next to last meeting on the subject yesterday.

And next week, one senator confidently predicted, the bill will move out on the senate floor with some minor amendments to be passed without trouble.

Thus, for the first time in 20 years, the annual basic pay of postal workers will be increased. The hike will range between $300 and $400.

In 1942, to keep pace with rising living costs, Congress voted the workers a temporary increase of $300 a year. That increase expires June 30. So the regular raise will take its place. The raise goes to practically everyone in the service.

The bill is supposed to do more than just give a salary increase. It is intended to adjust many inequalities and injustices which have arisen in the service since 1925. It's the result of a long study by the postoffice.

Under the bill postal workers also will get time-and-a-half pay for overtime, 10 per cent extra pay for night work, 15 days leave of absence with pay, and 10 days sick leave each year with pay.

There are 43,000 postoffices.

The service has 375,000 regular and substitute employes, plus those working on contract. They handle 35 billion pieces of mail annually.

Its financial operations total 17 billion dollars annually, including a postal savings bank with 2 1 2 billion dollars on deposit. There are 375,000 depositors.

The total cost of the increase to the government yearly will be 49 million dollars.

AUTO ACCIDENT

A collision between the cars of Miss Geneve Castles, of 616 Cayspy street and Freddy Bosley, of 1805 Coleman street occurred at the Monroe Recreation Center. The damage to Miss Castles' car consisted of a wrecked fender and tire.

GUESS ON BIDS ON STATE LEASE

Record-Large Tract Of 75,000 Acres Will Be Offered

BATON ROUGE, La., June 16.—(AP)—It apparently hasn't gotten to the betting pool stage yet, but one of the favorite guessing games around the capitol these days is on the amount the state may be offered next Tuesday for a mineral lease on the record-large tract of 75,000 acres of possibly impressively valuable oil land on Marsh Island, out off the gulf coast.

Some of the more conservative guesses, based on the idea that the huge game preserve is comparatively unexplored for oil possibilities, range as low as $100,000 cash bonus plus royalties.

Guessers at the other extreme place probable bids on the tract at "more than $2,000,000," basing their estimates on the fact that a prospectual permit alone on the 5,000 acre Rockefeller preserve brought $500,000, and four 5,000-acre tracts leased later brought more than $450,000.

On a straight acreage basis, the possible figure is equally difficult to estimate. If the island is, as some experts say, one of the richest, it might bring only $5 an acre, or $375,000. If it is not, some of them say—not land, it might bring as much as $200 an acre, or a price $15,000,000.

All that, of course, is considering only the cash bonus. Just what the preserve may bring eventually, including yearly rentals and royalties, could be estimated in figures even more nearly "astronomical."

Regardless of how much it does bring, half will go to the Russell Sage Foundation, which gave the land to the state, and both that share and the state's will be used, by agreement, in one or all of three fields: Propagation of wild life, public health and education.

Another smaller tract, 1,700 acres of school land on the island, will be leased the same day, and other miscellaneous leases of land over the state is expected to bring bidding to an all-time one-day total high.

The big lease, a sole exception to the usual 5,000-acre size limit, will contain many special provisions for the protection of wild life.

Geophysical exploration must be conducted so as to cause minimum damage to vegetation and wild life. No hunting or fishing is to be permitted. Special precautions are to be taken against fires. Every care must be taken to prevent pollution.

No firearms will be permitted, no liquor, no gambling, no trespassing, no speedboat racing. In other words, if Marsh Island does turn out to be a major oil field, it apparently will be one of the "quietest" the industry has ever known.

Rumors (pure) on the capitol political front have it that if ex-Gov. Sam Jones seeks the office again, his running mate may be U. S. Rep. Jimmie Domengeaux of Lafayette . . . That U. S. Rep Jimmie Morrison of Hammond is ready for another try for the governorship, this time with impressive financial backing . . . Another gubernatorial candidate may be U. S. Sen. Allen Ellender of Houma . . . That Sen. James O. Dykes of Lake Charles is being asked to run for congress.

SOLDIER LOSES 3 LEGS IN COMBAT

Master Sergeant Quickly Explains Two Were Artificial

RICHMOND, Va., June 16.—(AP)—M/Sgt. Robert E. Scott of New Orleans, La., lost three legs in combat.

Sergeant Scott, now in McGuire General Hospital here, hastens to explain that "only one of those legs was actually my own—the other two were artificial."

The sergeant's right leg was amputated in 1942 after he had survived a B-17 bomber crash in the Pacific ocean. A few months later he was back in action as a flight engineer on a B-29 bombing the Japanese mainland. He believes he is the only American GI to return to combat with an artificial leg.

Scott, who joined the army in 1927, was top gunner on a B-17 patrolling pacific waters when he lost his leg. Three Japanese submarines were sighted, cruising on the surface. The B-17 dived in for the kill and the crew cheered wildly as they saw their bombs find their mark on one of the subs. But a direct hit had disabled the B-17.

The operator had radioed the plane's position before it crash-landed and after nine hours of floating about on a raft, the men were rescued by a navy patrol boat, Scott with a shattered leg.

Tough luck again assailed the 38-year-old sergeant. The army truck carrying him from Guatemala to an army hospital turned over and the sergeant-gunner's wounded leg was further injured and his head was fractured. For five weeks Scott was totally blind. His leg was amputated just below the knee.

A few weeks later Scott was returned to the States, was fitted with an artificial leg and furnished a spare.

Scott applied for and got another overseas assignment, this time as a flight engineer and inspector on the massive B-29s based on the Marianas. It wasn't long before the sergeant was back in the air winging his way over the Japanese mainland and Tokyo.

It was during one of these bombing flights that Scott lost "leg No. 2" Jap Zeros, trying to shoot Scott's ship out of the air, sent machine gun bullets into his artificial leg.

"All I had left were splinters," Scott revealed. "I broke out with my spare leg."

During another bombing mission the sergeant was again shot up and the only part of his body that was nipped was—his spare leg.

Scott was returned home again as, to put in the sergeant's own words, "I had run out of legs."

Scott is now being fitted for another artificial leg by skilled technicians at McGuire Hospital orthopedic department.

A former electrical engineer in civilian life, Scott has his post-war career lined up.

"I already have a job with an orthopedic appliance company and I intend touring the country and visiting veterans' hospitals to demonstrate the use of artificial limbs," he said.

SHELL TRACER

A device which sends out a series of radio signals to be intercepted by the tail end of a shell and reflected back to a receiver has been developed. It gives U. S. ordnance and artillery experts an insight as to the course a shell takes when it leaves a gun, its range and its accuracy in hitting its target.

DR. J. O. REAVIS TO FILL PULPIT

Rev. J. O. Reavis, D. D., well known to synods of the Presbyterian church, will deliver a series of sermons at the Delhi Presbyterian church. The initial sermon will be delivered at the 11 a. m. service at that church this morning.

Dr. Reavis has traveled abroad and is a scholarly and highly interesting speaker, it is stated, and the public is invited to attend all services.

EDDA MUSSOLINI RISKS HER LIFE

Disguises Self To Save Husband's Diary From Gestapo

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP)—The Chicago Daily News said today that Edda Mussolini Ciano risked her life—once posing as a pregnant woman—to prevent the German Gestapo from obtaining the diary of her husband, Count Ciano, Mussolini's foreign minister, and to smuggle it out of Italy.

The Daily News, beginning publication of the diary Monday, in a dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, today said in part:

"The Gestapo tried at all costs to get the Ciano diary and its compromising revelations. The Nazis offered 200,000,000 gold lire, payable in Switzerland, for it. They even tried to barter the life of Ciano against his previous documents, but the diary escaped them. • • •

"Twenty hours before his (Ciano's) death, a strange scene occurred at the Swiss frontier village of Novazzano, in Tessin. Aided by a priest, a shabbily dressed, black-veiled old woman with immense haggard eyes had entered Switzerland stating her life had been threatened by the Neo-Fascists.

"She readily admitted her identity —Edda Ciano. • • • On hearing her identity, the gay Tessin lads goggled. For the famous countess, old and dishevelled as she appeared, was obviously pregnant.

"Edda Ciano was not pregnant.

Strapped under her dress were five commonplace notebooks—the Ciano diary—once held in the right drawer of the magnificent desk of the foreign minister in Rome's Chigi palace.

"On Dec. 20 (1943), 20 days before Ciano's execution, Edda got wind of German interest in Ciano's papers; she was staying in a clinic at Ramiola, near Parna, on her father's orders. Mussolini also advised his favorite daughter, Edda, to keep quiet if she did not want to get into serious trouble with the Gestapo.

"Nevertheless, Edda was constantly driving between the Verona prison, where her husband was spending the last days of his life, and the luxurious villa on the Lago Di Garda whence Mussolini 'governed' Neo-Fascist Italy. Using threats and scenes, Edda tried to induce her father to liberate her husband. • • •

The story said Himmler, Nazi Gestapo chief, impressed Hitler and Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, that if Ciano was spared he could serve as a peace intermediary with the Allies but that his precious papers must be obtained.

Ciano was executed Jan. 10, 1944.

Between 1650 and 1940, the population of the earth doubled from 1,100,000,000 to 2,200,000,000.

GUEST SPEAKER

JUDGE HARDY IS BANQUET GUEST

Stresses Court Functions In Talk To Bar Association Members

Judge George W. Hardy, Jr., of Shreveport, Judge of the Court of Appeal, Second Circuit, was guest speaker of the Fourth Judicial District Bar Association at a banquet and meeting held at the Virginia Hotel, this city, Tuesday, evening, his address being on the subject of "Juridical Legislation."

An appraisement was made of our democratic form of government—division of power into three branches of government, viz: legislative, executive and judicial.

An analysis was made of the proper function of the courts. Judge Hardy gave a very enlightening discourse on the principles of "stare decisis" which means the doctrine or principle that the decisions of the court should stand as precedents for future guidance. It was pointed out that cases should be well considered and reasoned so that when a decision is rendered it will in all probability stand the test of time. In a measure these decisions become property rights because contracts are entered into based on the faith and credit of such decisions. Therefore courts should follow precedents in order that there will not be so much uncertainty as to one's position or rights in the eyes of the law.

As there develops so much change in social and economic conditions and the underlying reasons for the old decisions do not apparently longer exist, the change in the law should be made by the legislature by its enactment of a new law. It would nullify the effect of the old decision.

In short, courts should not change their decisions merely in order to meet the exigency of an occasion. Should that tendency be pursued, there would ultimately become a lowering of the judiciary.

The courts, our tribunals of justice, have always been held in high esteem. This standard of excellence will be perpetuated by the courts properly exercising their functions and not going beyond the scope of their powers as laid down in our constitutional laws.

Thirty-five members of the association were present, and it was evident that they thoroughly enjoyed the address on such a timely subject.

SCHOOL HEALTH THEME AT MEET

Northeast Junior College Represented At Baton Rouge Conference

Northeast Junior College was represented by Miss Ada Bess Hart at a health conference held recently in Baton Rouge with headquarters on the campus of Louisiana State University. The meeting was designed to provide group discussions and the making of a tentative outline for a state health program similar to those already in force in Mississippi, North Carolina and Virginia.

Miss Hart, who is dean of women and director of health and physical education for women at the college here, met with a committee of about 75 persons comprising members of the university faculty, representatives of the State Department of Education, the State Department of Public Welfare, officials of the state and local units of the Parent-Teacher Association, president of the Louisiana Teachers Association, parish superintendents and supervisors, principals of various high schools, instructors in health and home economics of several colleges and specialists in health associations in this state.

At the general session delegates were welcomed by John E. Coxe, state superintendent of education; Dr. W. L. Treuting who represented Dr. David E. Brown, state health officer, and Dean Fred C. Frey, representing Dr. W. B. Hatcher, president of L. S. U. Plans for the work of the conference and the presentation of consultants were made by B. C. Alwes, principal of the Donaldsonville High school, who served as general chairman of the meeting. Dr. J. W. Broussard, director of the general extension division, L. S. U., outlined working conference methods, and Dr. T. Lynn Smith, head of the department of sociology at the University spoke on "Status of Health in Louisiana."

The rest of the three-day program was composed primarily of group meetings. A principal feature of the first day was the panel discussion on "State and National Trends in School, Community Health Development," with Dr. Frank Stafford, principal specialist, U. S. Office of Education, Washington, D. C., as leader. Participating were Dr. T. G. Bennett, consultant in health education, Richmond, Va.; Miss Mary Forbes, U. S. Public Health Service, Washington, D. C.; Dr. D. V. Galloway, School-Health Service, Jackson, Miss.; Miss Helen Mertikanen, Consultant, U. S. Public Health Service, Raleigh, N. C.; D. R. Patterson, coordinator, state department of education, Jackson, Miss.; and Dr. T. Lynn Smith.

Delegates formed three groups where factors in a school-community health program were discussed and various recommendations made. At one meeting an outline was made in answer to the question, "What is a good school-community health program for Louisiana?" Answers were based on health needs, health service and health education. A second group considered the best use of available and potential resources and facilities, and a third group discussed the personnel that would be needed and their form of training for a practical school-community health program.

Recommendations made at the conference included five periods each week of physical training in high schools; health instruction in high schools given regularly and considered as a fundamental subject as English, mathematics and numerous social sciences; the formation of a health program that can be adapted to the needs of Louisiana.

FOSTER HOMES MUST BE SUITED

Those In Charge Must Be Prepared To Meet Requirements

The purpose of foster homes is to provide home care for children who have lost their own homes. The child's need is the yard stick in choosing and approving foster homes. Experiments with children are costly and often result in serious damage to a child who is already frightened and grieved at the loss of his own home. So it is important that foster homes succeed.

Not all successful foster parents have had children of their own, but by far the greater percentage are parents who have been successful with their own children. The next large group of successful parents have had children in their homes so that they know what it is to live 24 hours daily with a child, with one day going into the next, and then into weeks and months. They see the child, not only on his company behavior but in his every-day life.

Teachers and other children's group workers do not have this aspect of work with children. They have not had the experience of putting the child to bed; soothing his fears; answering his calls during the night; bathing and dressing him; choosing his food and seeing that he eats it; taking care of his clothing and teaching him to take care of it; directing his play over a long period of time; choosing the chores what are suitable to him and helping him to choose for himself; settling his disputes within the family circle; teaching him manners; helping over-come his personality difficulties; teaching him not to be over-bearing and yet to stand up for his own rights; teaching him to be honest and truthful; giving him home religions training and seeing that he goes to Sunday school; helping him to learn to get along with the neighbors; seeing that he has spending money when he needs it, and working out with him the problems of his allowance. These are only a sample of things that come up in everyday life with a child. Mothers and fathers know these things, and foster parents need to know them too.

Foster parents who have successful experience with their own children are not dismayed by these problems but can take them in their stride. They understand that children are not always on good behavior. Successful parents and successful foster parents can be cheerful, patient and sympathetic, even when children are naughty. They can give the child time to work out his own problems. Good foster parents can be so sure of themselves that they are not disturbed if the child expresses feelings of unhappiness or fright. Perhaps he says he does not want to stay in the foster home. He wants to go somewhere else. Often a child expresses his unhappiness and his fear by acts of cruelty. Sometimes he fights or bullies other children because he himself is afraid. Perhaps he steals and does not understand why. He may be trying to gain possessions so that he will not feel so keenly that he does not have an own home. He may be greedy, not because he is physically hungry, but because eating food takes the place of the love which he does not have from his own parents. Perhaps he lies, either through fear or because he is trying to build himself up so that he will be loved, and admired. These and other expressions will not frighten foster parents who are secure in their own knowledge and experience.

Foster parents must be able to give love to the child. Frequently the child who needs love the most is the least physically attractive and the least responsive. Often the child is so grieved at the loss of his own home that he cannot accept love from anyone else. Foster parents must be wise and patient enough to wait until the child is ready to return their love.

Sometimes, of course, the best foster parents cannot succeed with a particular child. They should be strong and brave enough to accept this seeming failure and be able to know that all is not lost.

There are rich rewards. No one can estimate the value of one child.

STUDY BILLS ON CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Congressmen Seek To Clarify Succession To Presidency

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—The coming Big Three meeting whipped up congressional interest today in legislation designed to clarify the line of succession to the presidency in any emergency.

The conference of American, Russian and British chiefs of state will take both President Truman and Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius out of the country.

The White House disclosed yesterday that the meeting will be held in the vicinity of Berlin at an undisclosed date.

Under present law Stettinius is next in line for the presidency, in the absence of a vice-president. From there on the order of succession is clouded in uncertainty and conjecture. Some members of congress believe the office is passed down through the cabinet, but most agree it's a matter of interpretation.

A House committee recently approved a bill by Rep. Kefauver, Democrat, Tennessee, which, if adopted, would remove all doubt. Kefauver's bill provides that, if neither a president nor vice-president can serve, the office will go to the secretary of state and then pass through the cabinet in this order:

Secretaries of the treasury, of war, the attorney general, the postmaster general, secretaries of navy, interior, agriculture, commerce, labor.

The cabinet officer in line would take over the office only until the House of representatives could meet and elect a president.

The same subcommittee is studying a bill by Representative Monroney, Democrat, Oklahoma, which would put the speaker of the House in the presidential succession line right after the vice-president.

Monroney's bill would require the speaker to resign his congressional post and take over the executive office immediately should both the president and vice-president be unable to serve through death or lack of qualifications.

Should the speaker die after he has taken the presidential oath and while congress is in recess, the president pro tem of the Senate would become president—but he would hold the office only long enough for the House to meet and elect a speaker—who would promptly resign and become president.

The theory behind the Monroney bill is that it would always keep in the presidential chair a man who has been voted upon both by the people and by the House which represents all the people.

The Kefauver bill is intended merely to clear up the uncertainty over who becomes president if the secretary of state can't qualify due to abscence, death or a vacancy in that office.

CHRISTEN TRACTOR IN MISSISSIPPI

VICKSBURG, Miss., June 16.—(AP)—Director John Kimball of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board swung a bottle filled with Mississippi river water here today in christening ceremonies of what is believed to be the first tractor designed and built in this state.

The machine, the "B-9," was built by the R. G. LeTourneau company of Mississippi and is the company's first "postwar" model produced in the south.

The B-9, intended as a standard model for postwar distribution, is a 150-horsepower rubber-tired prime mover and is designed primarily for use with LeTourneau dirt-moving machines and cranes. It weighs 15,500 pounds.

The first of a pilot lot being tooled up for production at this plant, it was designed and constructed here in 60 days, company engineers said. It is capable of handling a 30-ton load.

Officials said they were considering a production schedule of 200 monthly during "the years immediately ahead."

The company, which has plants in Illinois, Georgia, Australia and here, announced that the machine christened today was the first product constructed in this plant for civilian use. The Mississippi plant, constructed since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, has been working exclusively on army and navy contracts.

The ceremony was conducted at the airport of the LeTourneau company after Kimball, accompanied by R. G. LeTourneau, Mrs. LeTourneau, state and company officials and newsmen, arrived here by plane from Jackson.

It was attended by, among others: Mayor R. E. Selby of Vicksburg; Louis Cashman, publisher of the Vicksburg Post-Herald; Ray Giezil, general manager of the LeTourneau plant here, and T. D. Davis, assistant to Kimball.

Chilled prunes and apricots, served together with orange juice make a refreshing breakfast opener.

this group but chose rather to give of his knowledge on the sidelines.

A large part of the present growth of Monroe has occurred during the active service here of Chief Roddy. He began his duties as chief under A. A. Forsythe and continued under Mayor Charles A. Downey, Mayor H. D. Apgar, Mayor Arnold Bernstein and the incumbent, Mayor H. H. Benoit. Four modern fire stations have been built in this time. They are station No. 1, on St. John street next to the Monroe city hall; station No. 2 on Stone avenue; No. 3 Louisville and North Sixth street; and No. 4 at Lee and Jackson streets. The personnel of the department today numbers 39 full-time employes, to all of whom the chief gave a lion's share of credit for the success of his administration.

The Insurance Exchange of Monroe, appreciating the excellent service rendered by the Monroe Fire Department in 1919, presented Chief Roddy with a gold medal as "A Token of Valued Services." Upon the completion of his tenth year as fire chief in 1923, he was personally commended by Mayor Bernstein and associates and received letters of congratulation upon the efficiency of his department from the state fire marshal and others.

When a fire occurred, the chief was ordinarily the first on the scene and he never spared himself in his efforts to avert the spread of a conflagration. Many times he received injuries and he had a large number of miraculous escapes. The last big fire in which he was injured and which contributed to the breakdown of his health was that of the Kellogg home on Loop road. He inhaled smoke and received other injuries which ultimately required that he go away from Monroe for the benefit of his health. Entering the Modern Woodmen Sanitarium in Woodman, Colo., where he received treatment for a lung ailment and where he remained for a year, up to last January when he returned much improved to Monroe and resumed his duties, which in his absence had been carried on by Capt. H. E. Roberts, assistant fire chief.

But a naturally sturdy nature was unable to withstand the inroads of bad health and last Monday he became so ill that he was forced to enter St. Francis Sanitarium where he failed rapidly up to his death on Saturday morning.

On January 6, 1914, Chief Roddy was married to Miss Edna R. Downey, daughter of Mayor Downey of Monroe, who was through the years a constant admirer and supporter of her husband, even insisting on going to fires with her husband in order to be near to aid should occasion require in the event that he might sustain injury. Mrs. Roddy survives her husband as do two sons. They are Charles Roddy, member of the Monroe Fire Department and Frank Roddy, Jr., who is in armed service with the Seabees. Two brothers also survive, Vincent Roddy and Johnny Roddy; and two sisters, Mrs. K. Blythe and Mrs. Annie Darby, all of Charleston, S. C.

The chief was an ardent Catholic, member of St. Matthew's Church; member of the Knights of Columbus, Woodmen; Lions Club of the Louisiana State Fire College and state firemen's association.

of his own character witnesses testified his position in the party was such that the villagers feared him.

In his statement to the court, Back quoted a man named Adam Weber as saying, "It's a pity I didn't find him (the flier) first—I would have cut his belly open."

Back also quoted an Ernest Conrad as saying "I would like to burn him," and said Conrad then kicked the airman in the face.

The night of the killing, Back related, he was visited by the Nazi district leader from Bitburg who patted him on the back and said: "You did a good job. But next time shoot between the eyes."

When Back insisted that he shot the flier simply "without thinking" his German lawyer prodded, "You must have thought about something."

But Back could say no more than "I was so nervous and excited."

The nine-man trial commission was reduced to seven members at the outset of the trial when Col. Charles H. Bryan of Parkersburg, W. Va., and Col. Horace M. Woodward, Jr., of Washington, said they already had formed prejudiced opinions about Back's guilt.

The remaining seven members, headed by Col. Louis J. Compton of Washington, included only two who sat at the previous trial.

POINT IS WON BY BURTON DEFENSE

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—(AP)—The defense won an admission today that W. T. Burton, wealthy Lake Charles oil man, had listed on his income tax return certain revenue which was not included in the W. T. Burton Company, Inc., statement.

Testifying at the income tax evasion trial of Burton and Luke Brown, company bookkeeper, a government witness said that the Burton Company had failed to list as assets one-fifth of the revenue received for dredging operations in 1936 and 1937.

As soon as George A. Lambert, special agent for the treasury's department's intelligence unit, made the statement, Hugh M. Wilkinson, chief defense attorney, was on his feet.

In reply to Wilkinson's question, Lambert admitted that the entire proceeds from dredging operations were shown on Burton's individual returns.

Burton and Brown are charged with evading and conspiring to evade in excess of $135,000 of income taxes of the corporation for the 1936-37-38 fiscal years.

A mistrial resulted in the summer of 1943 when Burton, Brown and S. W. Maxwell, corporation secretary, first were tried. Maxwell was granted a severance because he was too ill to undergo trial at the present.

The fourth 1943 defendant, Accountant Victor Canfield, was acquitted by directed verdict.

OKINAWA TYPHOONS THREATEN YANKEES

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—With the final mop-up of enemy forces on Okinawa in sight, American forces on that island in Japan's backyard now are facing another serious, but natural, threat.

That section of the globe is moving into the height of the annual typhoon season. Okinawa well might be named "Typhoon Junction."

Navy meteorlogical charts showing the path of typhoons in the area look like pictures of giant spiders with Okinawa as the body and the typhoon paths as the legs.

That factor undoubtedly weighed heavily in planning the Okinawa action, since records show the period from January to April having the area's lowest typhoon expectancy.

In May, however, typhoons begin to appear, generally following paths over the Philippines, Formosa and the East China Sea with some occasionally recurving over the Okinawa group.

In June, two major paths are followed—one across the Northern Philippines to the China coast and the other through the Okinawa group into Southern Japan.

Records show that from 1901 to 1940 there was an average of one typhoon every June in the area.

July, August and early September is the height of the typhoon season in this area, averaging three to four per month. The China Sea, the Okinawa group, the Japanese Sea, and Western Japan are particularly dangerous areas during the season.

From late September through December the frequency of typhoons subsides.

By a freak of nature, the China coast in the vicinity of the Yangtze river is singularly free of typhoons, charts showing normal paths turn northward before reaching the coast in that vicinity.

Obviously, this tremendous natural force must be taken into consideration in any plans for future operations in that area.

MIKOLAJCZYK IN MOSCOW FOR MEET

LONDON, June 16.—(AP)—Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, peasant-born former premier of Poland, arrived in Moscow tonight for a conference of rival Polish leaders who may shape a new Polish government and wipe out the gravest difference among the "Big Three."

The plain-spoken Polish leader arrived in the Soviet capital shortly before 6 p. m. after flying from Britain with Jan Stanczyk, Socialist Miners' leader, dispatches from Moscow said.

While Mikolajczyk was awaited, representatives of the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw government and of non-government parties from within Poland held preliminary discussions in Moscow.

All delegates invited from within Poland have arrived in Moscow, dispatches from the Soviet capital said, with the exception of aging Polish Peasant Leader Wincenty Witos, who was said to be too ill to attend.

A British foreign office commentator, however, said that the "Big Three" commission in Moscow—Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov and the British and American ambassadors—had sent a new urgent request to 72-year-old Witos to aid in settling the long stalemated Polish dispute.

The peasant party leader is considered a key to the successful solution of the Polish problem. In London, American and British observers believe that the best chance of forming a new provisional government of Poland centers around the possible choice of Mikolajczyk as premier.

Mikolajczyk, however, is believed willing to accept such a post only if his nomination has the support of Witos' peasant party.

In London there was hope that Mikolajczyk's trip to Moscow would also dispel the mystery of the 16 Poles under Soviet arrest and now facing imminent trial for "diversionary acts."

NOVELIST DIES

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP)—Henry Bellamann, 62, novelist, poet, musician and composer, died today after a long illness. He was best known as the author of "Kings Row," which won him national fame in 1940. Born Heinrich Hauer Bellamann in Fulton, Mo., he was a musician before he turned to writing poetry and novels in 1920.

the maintenance of a peaceful world."

Vice-Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, deputy chief of naval operations, who expressed the conviction that "only by a large standing military force or by some form of universal military training does it appear practicable to provide reasonable assurance of the future military security of this country."

Vice-Adm. Randall Jacobs, chief of naval personnel, who cited "purely illustrative" figures providing for a post-war navy personnel of 500,000 enlisted men and 1,300,000 reserve personnel necessary to provide "effective war strength" and rapid transition from peace to war.

Lt. Gen. Ira Eaker, deputy commander of the army air forces, who said peacetime training "will provide the most practical method of defense for this country, at the lowest cost, with the least disruption to the American way of life," and urged its adoption "for the same reason that a prudent man carries fire insurance or tornado insurance."

To further bolster its case, the navy filed with Chairman Woodrum letters of endorsement from Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz and Adm. William F. Halsey.

Halsey told the committee:

"It is only common sense to be strong enough to protect our precious heritages against depredation; If we don't we will lose those heritages and deserve to lose them."

"If we don't find and train and employ" capable men in international relations" we will lose our shirts as we have in the past," he added.

Nimitz asserted:

"Unless the American people are willing to risk witnessing the devastation of our coastal cities as Warsaw, Berlin, Manila and Tokyo have been devastated, enactment of his legislation is imperative. We must fashion a program for the future that will minimize the danger of war but provide against it if it should come."

The army and the navy advocated one year of continuous military training, emphasizing that the trainees would not be used in actual service, for every able-bodied male some time between the ages of 17 and 20, with exemptions held to a minimum.

In this they differed from many other witnesses who have advocated that the twelve months of training be spread out over a period of several years so as not to interfere with education. This plan, service spokesmen said, is not practicable.

And they urged that action be taken now, not after the war, as many have urged.

Referring to those who have advocated delay, Forrestal told the committee he believed many of them were motivated by the belief that "delay means defeat."

America's readiness to accept her responsibilities in under-writing the peace of the world," the secretary declared, "will be the surest guarantee of maintaining the peace. "International agreements, treaties, documents of world order * * * are empty and meaningless unless this country is ready to back them up."

"The world now must know * * * that, much as we hate war, we are ready to wage swift and effective war against any nation which tries to overthrow rule by law and justice, replacing it with rule by force," he added, and told the committee further:

"We are going to fight any international ruffian who attempts to impose his will on the world by force."

Referring to fears expressed earlier in the hearings by educators and clergymen that a year of military life might be detrimental to the morals of the nation's youth, General Marshall said:

"The army has demonstrated that it can effectively and expeditiously instruct men and that it does this without detriment to the mind and character of the individual . . . I firmly believe that universal military training would be a stimulant to education rather than a deterrent. It would be a perfect demonstration of democracy, with rich and poor alike, side by side, rendering a common service."

9 DISTRICT SOCIAL WELFARE MEETS SET

BATON ROUGE, La., June 16.—(AP)—Fall meetings of the Louisiana Conference of Social Welfare have tentatively been set for nine districts, Dr. R. H. Bolyard, president of the conference, announced at the quarterly meeting of the board of directors today.

Meetings will be held in September and October in Minden Bastrop, Natchitoches, Alexandria, Jennings, Franklin, Covington, Hahnville, and New Orleans.

Bolyard said that regional conferences also plan to sponsor local meetings in a number of parishes to interpret and implement the legislative program of the conference. Discussions at these conferences, he said, will include needs for social welfare committees of the two state legislative houses; provisions for the care of the chronically ill and homeless aged; compulsory school attendance, civil service, and the appointment of superintendent of education.

DEATHS

MRS. MARGARET C. ANDERSON

Mrs. Margaret C. Anderson, 71, died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of a daughter, Mrs. D. E. Bivins, on the Dixie-Overland highway near West Monroe. Mrs. Anderson, who had made her home with her daughter since 1937, had been ill for several months.

She was born March 24, 1874, at Vicksburg, Miss., and was a member of St. Paschal's Catholic Church of West Monroe.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Turkey Bayou Church with the Rev. H. R. Dove officiating. Burial will follow in Davis Cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home of Winnsboro.

MRS. LYDIA ADELE LYNCH

Mrs. Lydia Adele Lynch, mother of P. P. Lynch, of West Monroe, died at her home in Jackson, Miss., early yesterday. Mrs. Lynch was born at Carriere, Miss., 57 years ago.

Besides Mr. Lynch, Mrs. Lynch is survived by a daughter, Miss Ann Lynch, of Jackson, and her mother, five sisters and one brother.

Funeral services will be held at St. Peter's Catholic Church at Jackson Monday morning, and interment will follow in the Cedar Lawn Cemetery at Jackson.

MILITARY POLICE SENT TO CHICAGO

(By Associated Press)

The army sent 1,500 military police into Chicago yesterday to protect government control of the city's strike-threatened trucking industry while a gradual return to normal was begun at five Carnegie-Illinois steel plants in Pittsburgh which had been shut down two days by a strike.

Government seizure of 1,700 trucking companies was effected Friday as the result of a long-standing controversy between drivers and employers over wages and hours.

A "heat relief" strike of less than 100 coke workers had closed the five Pittsburgh steel plans but the strikers yielded to pleas from C. I. O. and United Steel Workers President Philip Murray and from the War Labor board to return to their jobs.

The Regional War Labor Board at Cleveland ordered 2,200 striking workers at the Diamond Alkali Co. near Painesville, Ohio, to return to work and submit their grievance for settlement.

An eight-day work stoppage at five plants of the Breeze Corporation in Newark and Elizabeth, N. J., manufacturing aircraft parts, continued despite a Regional War Labor Board return-to-work order.

About 2,800 Breeze employes, members of the United Automobile Workers, C. I. O., were idle.

A slowdown of 90 per cent of New York City's buses continued through the third day yesterday. Drivers are protesting long hours of work.

Striking bus drivers and mechanics in eight southern states have been ordered by the W. L. B. to return to work by Monday.

A strike of 400 transit employes at Scranton, Pa., ended at the request of President Truman.

WORK PILING UP AT BIG PARLEY

Likely Not To Finish Before Truman's Scheduled Speech

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—(AP)—Australia stepped forward today to reopen the bitter veto fight at the United Nations conference in the event Russia insists upon curtailing rights of a new world assembly to debate all international problems.

Both these issues had been written off the books as largely closed by assumption of arguments over them that questionably would stir up strong feelings and incur delay at a moment when the conference is struggling to wind up its affairs in a spirit of international good will.

Even if a new flare-up is avoided, technical and mechanical troubles were stacking up in such volume today that it was an even money bet the conference will not get through its tremendous tasks by next Saturday—the date set for President Truman's closing address.

In morning, afternoon and night sessions, committees were striving to polish off final details of the charter for a new United Nations organization.

Some of the fire disappeared from a small nation campaign to prevent application of great power veto rights to future revision of the charter, but the little countries waned assurance there would be a definite opportunity for revision.

Great nations were against declaring the charter should be overhauled within any specific time. They contended this would indicate the conference was constructing a temporary rather than a permanent international organization.

President Truman definitely is scheduled an address at a session of the conference a week from today. He may make the address, but it may not be the closing meeting.

A committe of jurists has to go over the charter piece by piece to see that it is in legal terminology.

Another sign the conference soon may be running into late June, was an official announcement that there would be no open, public commission meetings today or tomorrow to rat committee action. Originally a heavy round of them had been planned for the week-end in the interest of speed.

Wedding Of Social Prominence To Take Place In Shreveport Next Month

Helen May Ewing To Wed Lt. Clay

Daughter of Mr. And Mrs. John Dunbrack Ewing Will Become Bride of Lt. Henry Brevard Clay

Of unusual social interest because of the prominence of both families is the announcement today by Mr. and Mrs. John Dunbrack Ewing of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen May Ewing, to Lt. Henry Brevard Clay of the naval air corps, son of Clifford C. Clay and Mrs. A. M. Williamson, both of Atlanta, Ga.

Plans have been made for the wedding to take place Thursday, July 19, at 8 o'clock in the evening at St. Mark's Episcopal church, with the Rev. Frank E. Walters, rector, officiating. Miss Lucile Hamilton will be maid of honor and Mrs. Charles T. Beaird will be matron of honor. Bridesmaids will include Mrs. Robert Ewing Brown, Miss Virginia McCrossin of Colorado Springs, a former classmate of Miss Ewing's at Wellesley college and Miss Beulah Clay of Atlanta, Ga., a sister of the bridegroom-to-be. Little Miss Judy Dismoway, a cousin of the bride-elect, will be flower girl.

Miss Ewing's paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ewing of New Orleans and her maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin DeGraffenreid Gray of Shreveport. The Ewing family has been outstanding in southern journalism for three generations. Miss Ewing was graduated from Byrd High school and Gulf Park College and also attended Wellesley college. For the past few months she has divided her time between the family home in Shreveport and their summer home, "Katlaha (Magnolia)" in Pass Christian, Miss.

Lieutenant Clay is descended on his father's side from the late Mr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Clay Sr., of Americus, Ga., descendants of the Virginia Clays of Colonial days, and his maternal grandparents are Mrs. Beulah Bell of Atlanta, Ga., and the late Charles Martin of Cincinnati, Ohio. Lieutenant Clay attained scholastic, social and athletic honors at Vanderbilt University from which he was graduated cum laude. He was president of SAE fraternity, member of the "Owls," an honorary organization, and captain of the boxing team.

He received his commission as ensign from Northwestern University of Evanston, Ill., in January, 1942, and served 31 months overseas. During this time, he served aboard the cruiser, "Tuscaloosa," on its runs between Iceland and Murmansk, Russia, in the early months of the war, and later as gunnery officer aboard the battleship "Iowa," during many of the major campaigns of the Pacific area. He transferred to aviation, returning to the United States in July, 1944, and received his wings from Pensacola, Fla., May 29, 1945.

Mrs. Flutt E. Hundley Jr. of Kansas City and Springfield, Mo., arrived last week, accompanied by her brother and sister-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Bryce F. Johnston of Kansas City, to be guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hundley. Informal affairs of a social nature have been planned for Mrs. Hundley during her visit. She will return to Springfield next week to await the arrival of her husband, Captain Hundley who is doing overseas duty as a pilot in the transport command.

After a visit with the Hundleys, Captain and Mrs. Johnston journeyed on to New Orleans before returning to Captain Johnston's base in San Antonio, Tex.

MULHEARN FUNERAL HOME, INC

Purely Personal

From the orange blossoms caught to her veil to the wedding ring that is slipped on her finger, the bride of 1945 is surrounded by an aura of tradition handed down through the centuries of ceremonies preceding hers. A sprig of orange blossoms in the bride's ensemble has long been accepted as a symbol of freshness and purity. But when she adds a dash of perfume she seldom realizes that its use by brides stems from the ancient custom of bathing the bride in holy water and anointing her with incense to attract the spirits of good will to herself and her husband. It was in 1549 in the Book of Common Prayer that Edward VI ordained the use of the left hand for the wedding ring. The third finger is used since the ancients believed the vein of love ran directly from that finger to the heart. According to custom the gold or platinum wedding band must be an unbroken circle as the symbol of the eternity of love.

The dime the bride often tucks in her shoe is regarded as a precursor of plentiful goods, and the handfuls of rice which speed her and her bridegroom on their way originated with the custom of giving food to evil influences to induce them to be propitious and depart. Even the first piece of the many-tiered cake, traditionally shared by the bride and groom has its meaning, for throughout the ages the bridal pair has eaten off the same plate or drunk from the same glass to symbolize the future of all earthly possessions.

The lovely, young brides walking altarward during the month of June are Miss Nan Drew who becomes the bride of John Salisbury on June 26 and Miss Mary Frances Zeigen who will wed Charles Henry Stone III on June 22.

Miss Drew will wear the traditional white satin and will have as her attendant her classmate at Randolph Macon college, Miss Mildred Ridley of Murfreesboro, Tenn. The junior bridesmaids will be Jane and Ann Sheppard of Ferriday.

Several of Miss Drew's classmates at Randolph Macon will arrive June 24 for the wedding and will be the guests of Miss Carrie Dee Drew. They are: Miss Nancy McNair of Blackstone, Va., Miss Jean Thompson of Savannah, Ga., Miss Ann Suthon of New Orleans, Miss Ailene Wood and Miss Emily Cordell of Tulsa, Okla., Miss Jean Ogle of Evansville, Ind.

Miss Zeigen will also wear the traditional white satin on her wedding day. She will have Miss Cornelia McHenry for her maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be: Misses Patsy Zeigen, Miss Mary Stone, Miss Clarice Slagle, Miss Martha Gray Thompson, Miss Ann Holliman and Miss Kathrine Lawson. The flower girl will be Pauline Barringer.

Miss Louise Rinehart will be the soloist.

Gifted Singer Will Appear In Recital

Mrs. Johnette Register Wroten Will Be Presented In Program Of Voice Numbers

Mrs. H. C. Wroten Jr., will be presented at Northeast Junior College in a program of vocal numbers as a special feature of the assembly in Brown hall auditorium on Monday morning, June 18 at 10 o'clock. An invitation is extended to the public to hear this musician who is well known here where as Johnette Register she gained considerable recognition for her contribution to various musical programs and for her work as soloist in one of the local churches.

After studying for over two years under Isaac Van Grove in New York, she recently returned to Louisiana with her husband who is presently employed in New Orleans. Back home for a visit, she will make her first public appearance since her return when she is presented at the college. It is like coming home in many ways, she explains, as she began the study of voice on the campus here as a pupil of Dallas Gross, instructor in voice at the college at that time, then she continued work under Mrs. Estelle Sanders of Monroe.

Through her first meeting with Van Grove when he stopped in Monroe for a short time several years ago, Mrs. Wroten gained an audition with him. Two years later she went to New York for three weeks study under him, and it was then he offered her a scholarship which meant studying with him for two and one-half seasons.

Working with Van Grove has been a rare privilege, Mrs. Wroten declares enthusiastically.

As a noted coach and conductor, he has been associated with Max Reinhardt in his Hollywood workshop for a number of years. His name also is connected with numerous stars of opera and theater. The list includes Mary Garden, whose coach and accompanist he was for several years, besides Grace Moore, Gladys Swarthout and Lawrence Tibbett whom he coached. He assisted Katherine Hepburn when she was working in "The Philadelphia Story," and directed the music for "One Night of Love," the first motion picture in which Grace Moore sang. For several seasons Van Grove was conductor of the Chicago Opera company.

A man of dauntless energy, Van Grove also has done considerable work in the field of composition. He is the author of "The Beggars Opera," the first American opera produced successfully and which starred Gladys Swarthout. He was not pleased with it, however, and he finally destroyed the score completely. To his list of accomplishments are several pageants and the religious drama based on Judges IV which he wrote in the early spring of this year. Mrs. Wroten sang the lead role of Deborah in this production.

She will resume her study with Van Grove when she returns to New York in October. By then, he says, she will be ready to do some professional work.

Neville Seniors Receive Awards

Mr. Orchard Presents American Legion Awards To Miss Oliver And Mr. Hamilton

When Mr. Sam Orchard addressed members of the Neville high school graduating class and presented the American Legion Certificate of school awards to Miss Miriam Oliver and James Hamilton, he made the following glowing talk:

"It is indeed a great honor and privilege for me to appear before you tonight as the representative of L. B. Faulk Post No. 13, Department of Louisiana, American Legion to present to two of the members of this graduating class, these two school awards. At this time, we wish also to thank the school officials of Neville High School, who have cooperated so enthusiastically with us in this school award program. We likewise wish to thank the State Department of Education of Louisiana, for their full endorsement of this activity.

One of the important phases of our educational program is the American Legion School Award activity, through which the qualities of good citizenship have been taught to thousands of boys and girls in the graduating classes since 1927. This activity had its inception in the Department of Pennsylvania and was made part of our National program at our National Convent in at San Francisco in the same year of 1926.

The American Legion composed of more than one million patriotic Americans has at heart the welfare of the young men and women of today, because they represent the future of this nation. The future strength, progress and honor of our nation lie in its young men and young women. The American Legion being composed of men who went to war for the protection of our nation as well as for the preservation of our government and for the honor of the flag, when represents our government, desires to transmit to them, all the ideals of good citizenship which we have at heart.

We have therefore, carefully considered the qualities which we believe make the ideal citizen and will briefly cite the five principles upon which these awards are being made. I would like to have the juniors, sophomores and freshmen keep in mind these qualifications.

First and foremost is character. Above all else our schools are trying to turn out graduates who have strength and stability of character, high standards of conduct, adherence to truth, and full devotion to duty.

Next is courage which implies bravery in the face of opposition and danger, determination and force to do the right without public applause and regardless of personal advantage.

The third point is scholarship over a four-year period of time which implies many fine traits of industry, perseverance, and intelligence. The competition has been keen, and success would not have been possible without intense application coupled with effective methods of study.

Next is leadership in extra-curricular activities. This leadership has probably been more effective in developing your abilities than has the acquisition of much more information which was already organized by your instructors or by your textbooks.

The fifth and last principle is service to your school and to your community. Your great reward for unselfish service to others comes from the joy and happiness you have been able to bring to them.

We also wish to remind these two recipients of these medals and certificates that these represent the highest honors given to any civilians by the American Legion. I now ask that Miss Miriam Oliver and Mr. James M. Hamilton come forward to receive these awards.

Miss Oliver, we are conferring upon you an honor which should be entrusted only to one of the noblest character, highest ideals, and the most tender sympathy. We want you to bear in mind that the country can never rise higher than the soul of its womanhood. We want you to know that we have complete faith in the majesty of your mind, and the goodness of your heart. And now may the strong love of God Almighty abide within your bosom and, like an armed band of invincible and immortal warriors, guide and guard you in all walks of life.

Mr. Hamilton this is a medal that proclaims to the world that the comrades of the men who died for you upon the battlefields of Europe, Asia and the South Pacific, believe in their hearts that you are the kind of young man for whom these men were glad to die. We want you to have and we believe you have, a reverence for God and an undying love for your native land. It is our wish that wherever you go you will be guided by the highest and holiest ideals."

Interest Centered In Nuptial Event

West Monroe Methodist Church Is The Setting For Prominent June Wedding

Claiming prominence among the many Junetime nuptials was the wedding of Miss Georgene Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wick Welch of West Monroe, and Lt. Donald Francis Strain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Strain of Lamar, Colo. The double ring ceremony, featuring beauty of detail, took place at the First Methodist church, West Monroe, with the pastor, Rev. Porter M. Caraway, officiating.

White gladioli and Shasta daisies overflowing from tall floor pedestal vases were silhouetted against a background of southern smilax. Baskets of white gladioli formed a semi-circle for the wedding party.

The organist, Miss Ann Mallett wearing a gown of azure blue with corsage of pink carnations, rendered a nuptial concert while the ushers, Cadets Hugh Williams and Robert C. Berry, seated the guests. Miss Mallett also accompanied Miss Dorothy Powell, the soloist, who sang in lovely voice, "O Sweet Mystery of Life," and "Because." Miss Powell wore yellow organza with corsage of daisies.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, the bridal party preceded down the white carpeted aisles. Miss Ouida Welch, her sister's maid of honor, wore a yellow taffeta model. The tight-fitting bodice was fashioned with a peplum. The full skirt with panel back, ended in a semi-train. Her headpiece was fashioned of net and daisies and her arm bouquet was of shasta daisies tied with tulle to match her gown.

Miss Marjorie Bounds and Miss Ruth Bounds of Shreveport, cousins of the bride, served as bridesmaids. Their gowns, of apple green taffeta, were exact replicas of the gown worn by the maid of honor. They wore attractive head-dresses of green tulle and carried arm bouquets of shasta daisies.

The flower girl, Frances Butler of Baton Rouge, a cousin of the bride, wore a floor-length model of white marquisette and carried a basket filled with daisy petals.

Lt. Paul Omsley of Selman Field served as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore the traditional white satin wedding gown fashioned with a deep yoke of mouseline edged with Alencon lace. The sleeves were long and came to a point over the hands. The skirt, long and full ended in a court train. Her finger-tip veil was caught to the hair with a chaplet of orange blossoms.

The bride observed all the century old customs including a good luck dime in her slipper. For something old she wore the diamond necklace worn by generations of brides in the family and worn by her mother on her wedding day. Her shower bouquet was of gardenia and white orchids.

Mrs. Welch, the bride's mother, wore a Bahama blue model with corsage of pink carnations and a wide-brimmed hat of white horse-hair braid.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Welch home. Beautiful flowers were everywhere in evidence with white flowers predominating in the dining room where the bride's table was overlaid with handsome lace and encircled with gardenias. Crystal baskets overflowing with daisies and white feverfew were placed at either end of the table.

The three-tiered wedding cake, a beautifully embossed confection, was surmounted with a soldier and bride figurines. A wedding bell of tulle and satin ribbon hung from the chandelier and was caught at the four corners of the table with satin bows.

Mrs. John P. Lewis, wearing pink lace, Mrs. Fred Thatcher, wearing white printed jersey and Miss Marguerite Norris, wearing green printed jersey, presided at the punch bowl. A coterie of young girls, Bettye Henry, Jean Gentry, Bevery Ann Thatcher, Jo Lane Jarrell and Billie Durbin, wearing bouffant evening gowns, passed trays of individually embossed cakes and assisted in serving the frosted punch.

Mrs. R. B. Henry, wearing a blue mesh model presided over the guest book. Many handsome gifts were on display in a room set aside for the purpose. In addition to china, silver, and linens, checks in generous amounts, were included among the gifts.

After cutting the wedding cake, the bride and groom left for a honeymoon trip to Colorado where they will spend a few days with his parents.

Mrs. Strain changed her wedding raiment for a smart tailleur of light green with brown accessories. Her corsage from her wedding bouquet, was white orchids and was a charming accent. They will return to this city shortly and the groom will be assigned from Selman Field where he has been stationed for the past several months.

Mrs. Strain was graduated from Ouachita Parish High School and attended Northeast Junior College and Louisiana State University. She is a member of Delta Kappa Pi and Delta Psi Omega sororities. Lieutenant Strain is a graduate of Colorado University and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Tanner of Homer; Miss Maurene Martin of Baton Rouge, Mrs. E. F. Welch, Bernice, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Young of New Orleans; Mrs. Charles Fuller and little daughter of Baton Rouge, Misses Marjorie and Ruth Bounds of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Ham of Fairbanks; and Miss Carrie Mae Tanner of Homer.

The following article from the social section of the Times Picayune, New Orleans, will be read with interest by friends in this city:

A delightful event of Tuesday afternoon was the tea given by Mrs. Edmand L. Faust who entertained complimentary to Miss Mary Stuart Kellogg, whose engagement to Mrs. Faust's son, Pfc. Richard Alan Faust, army of the United States, was recently announced. Mrs. Faust entertained at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles G. Coyle on Jefferson avenue and receiving with her, besides the guest of honor, were her daughter, Miss Consuelo Faust and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edmond L. Faust Jr. The reception and dining rooms of the home were additionally pretty with magnolia blossoms and other spring flowers and upon the tea table was a lovely centerpiece of white daisies. Presiding at either end of the tea table were Mrs. James Robin and Mrs. Thomas C. Nicholls Jr., and presiding at the punch table was Mrs. William Elliott Laudeman.

The tea, given between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock, brought together an interesting gathering of friends of the hostess and those of the guest of honor.

RECEIVE HIGH AWARDS

Miss Miriam Oliver and James Hamilton, members of this year's senior class of the Neville High School, were presented with the Sigma-Sigma scholarships awards by L. B. Faulk Post number 13 American Legion for their high qualities of courage, character, service, companionship and scholarship which are necessary to the preservation and protection of the fundamental institutions of our government and the advancement of society. The certificates were presented by Mr. Sam Orchard who paid glowing tributes to the young seniors on the night of graduation. Miss Oliver and Mr. Hamilton have received many high honors during their high school careers. Both were selected as "favorites" for the high school annual and both were selected by a Gulf Park college committee for their beauty and good looks.

Miss Calvert Weds In New York City

Marriage Of Miss Dorothy Calvert And Mr. Fyler Claims Interest In This City

The chapel of Riverside Church in New York City was the scene of a quiet wedding, June 8, when Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Calvert, daughter of Dr. Emmett G. Calvert and the late Mrs. Jonnie Tooke Calvert, of West Monroe became the bride of Wolfgang Fyler, son of Mrs. Karl Julius Fyler and the late Mr. Fyler. The Rev. Dr. Norris L. Tibbetts performed the ceremony. The bride wore a gray wool suit with gray blouse, white gloves and black accessories and a wide-brimmed gray hat with blue, yellow, fuchsia and rose flowers encircling the crown. She carried a prayer book surmounted with a small bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a gold flower pin, the gift of the bridegroom, and for something old she carried a rose-point lace handkerchief which belonged to her grandmother, the late Mrs. Virginia Grahame Tooke.

The bridegroom's mother served as matron of honor and Mr. Fyler had Mr. Phillip Ormsby of New York City for his best man.

Mrs. Fyler, a great favorite in younger social circles of this city, is a graduate of Louisiana State University and attended the Juilliard School of Music. She is a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Mr. Fyler is a brilliant musician and was affiliated with several music clubs of this city, including the Musical Coterie.

Mr. Fyler was born in Baden, Germany, and came to New York in 1926 and became an American citizen five years thereafter. He received his classical education in private schools and attended art schools in Munich and Berlin. He has been associated with the Conde Nast Publications for the past 15 years and is presently art editor of House and Garden.

His father, a metallurgist and manufacturing jeweler, died several years ago.

His mother, the former Elsa Geiges, who joined him in New York a few years ago, is a member of the Geiges family which has figured notably in the artistic world. She had a brief concert career (piano) before her marriage.

Mr. Fyler's uncle, Dr. H. C. Fritz Geiges, in whose memory a museum in Freiberg was maintained, was an artist in the field of glass painting and a director of the Berlin Academy of Art. The above mentioned museum is now in all probability, destroyed.

His sister is the Baroness von dem Bussche Streithorst of Stecklenberg in Harz, Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Fyler, after a brief wedding trip, will make their home in Kitchawan, Westchester county, New York.

Ted Malone Is Subject Of Paper

A paper on the life of Ted Malone, prepared by Mrs. C. D. Lyons, was read by Mrs. E. Atkinson at the last meeting of the Monroe Bookfellows in the home of Mrs. E. E. Lawson. She said:

"If you ask Ted Malone when he was born, he will tell you, "April, 1929, when I was 21 years old." And he will add that it was all an accident. The real story began in Colorado Springs, Col., where Ted Malone was born and grew up as Frank Alden Russell. But it was in Missouri, where he went to high school in Independence and to William Jewell College in Liberty, that Alden Russell began to show signs of becoming Ted Malone—writing and producing plays, winning speaking contests, and announcing one of the first football games ever to be broadcast on the radio. After leaving William Jewell, Alden Russell went directly into radio at station KMBC in Kansas City, Mo., where he demonstrated his versatility as singing partner in a harmony team; space salesman; continuity editor; author of several popular radio programs, including "Happy Hollow," and "Phenomenon;" and finally as program director of KMBC.

The accident which made him Ted Malone occurred at KMBC. Faced with an unexpected blank in the daily broadcast schedule, Alden Russell grabbed a volume of poetry, sat down before a mike, and began to read and to talk—just filling time. Because he had a feeling that poetry was "sissy stuff," he didn't use his own name when he signed off. He picked a name out of the air and said, "This is * * * uh * * * Ted Malone." That, he thought, was that. But audience response to his impromptu poety broadcast was so enthusiastic that the program which began as an accident became "Between the Bookends" and continued as a national radio favorite on the air every weekday for fifteen years.

Ted Malone soon sold himself on poetry, just as he has sold millions of radio listeners. He realized that poetry has a very real significance for everyday living, and he proved that radio is a perfect medium for poetry. "Between the Bookends" was successively broadcast on all four major networks.

Malone is a dyed-in-the-wool radio man, however, and radio has always remained his primary interest. For two years America listened in every Sunday afternoon to hear Ted Malone's "Pilgrimage" broadcasts for NBC; he journeyed from New England to California to take his audience into the homes of famous American poets and prose writers and to tell the inside stories of their lives. After Pearl Harbor, "Bookends" became an important factor in radio's contribution to wartime morale work. Once a week Malone planned special programs for service men which were short-waved to G. I. Joe overseas, and he devoted much of his radio time to poetry and stories requested by service men and their families.

In April, 1944, "Between the Bookends" went off the air when Ted Malone was so outstanding that it was correspondent for the Blue network. His broadcasts about G. I. Joe at the front were so outstanding that it wasn't not long before Westinghouse offered him a five-year contract. His human interest reports on young Americans at war have attracted a home front audience of unprecedented size, and under the sponsorship of Westinghouse he has given American families news of their boys in England, France, Iceland, Belgium, Italy, and other European countries he has visited. "I feel as if I had a contact with every family in America," he says; and he adds that the last stops on his broadcast schedule are Berlin and Tokyo.

Ted Malone's three great interests are his work, his family, and his hobby. His work, which has taken him overseas, has separated him for the time being from his family—his wife Verlia, who was his sweetheart in college days, and his two daughters, Bubbles, who is a very grown-up thirteen, and Happy, a lively five-year-old. He has taken his hobby, photography, overseas with him, and he expects to become famous as the man who has taken bad pictures and lost expensive cameras all over the United States and Europe.

For the duration, Ted Malone will continue reporting on G. I. Joe to families and friends at home.

The Girl Reserve Leadership Conference held in Monroe this week has been a great success from every viewpoint. The week's program included impressive worship services under the leadership of Miss Eugenia Hogan of New Orleans.

The group singing was under the leadership of Miss Geneve Castles. Miss Eleona Brumsmade and Mrs. Charles Bennett.

Sunday will be unusually busy for members of the Girl Reserves. Highlighting the day's activities will be the open house at the Y. W. C. A. between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Sunday morning service at the First Methodist Church will be attended in a body.

The week's program included: Worship service, singing, general assembly, talk by Miss Leta Galpin, discussion groups, worship groups, dancing, dramatics, personality clinic, home nursing, first aid, sports, swimming and campfire ceremonial.

Claiming prominence on the week's program was the talk on "Personality" delivered by Mr. William Grosse. The home nursing program was led by Miss Edith Faye. Miss Louise McDonald led the class in dramatics. Mrs. Hugh Glasgow led the dancing group.

TENTH ARMY

a communique. The hill is designated 167 by the Americans because of its height in meters.

On the east side of the island, the Seventh Infantry division took two hills, 115 and 153, which are respectively 379 and 502 feet high.

Tanks operating in very rough, covered terrain supported the Seventh's 32nd regiment in taking Hill 115.

The capture of the three key heights put the Tenth army troops in positions looking directly down on the remnants of the Japanese garrison, numbering possibly 10,000 men compressed into less than eight square miles.

The three hills run in a line southeastward from Yuza on the northwest part of the plateau.

Capture of the highest, Yuza, by the 353rd regiment of the 96th division, came in a drive from its neighboring peak, Yaeju, which the 381st regiment had cleaned up a day earlier.

The capture was of particular value to the First marine division, which was having a tough battle a mile and a half westward of Kunishi ridge against one of the strongest Japanese concentrations of automatic weapons yet seen on Okinawa.

The marine positions on the ridge remained essentially unchanged, Nimitz' communique said.

Despite the terrific resistance still put up by the enemy, Japanese surrenders and suicides were daily growing more frequent, Associated Press Correspondent Al Dopking reported from the front.

Okinawan civilians fleeing from the Japanese-held area were causing the Americans some diffculty also.

The desperate enemy tried his old trick of night infiltration on a large scale throughout the week. Today's communique reported the killing of 1,000 in these attacks, building up the total Nipponese dead to perhaps as much as 75,000 for the campaign, 73 days old today.

After three days of complete inactivity by the enemy air force over Okinawa, the Japanese sent in some planes Friday, headquarters disclosed.

"Two enemy planes were shot down by our night fighters and the remainder retired without causing damage," the communique said.

From last reported positions, the marines on the west had less than three miles to go to reach the southernmost tip of the island, and the Seventh Infantry on the east was less than four miles away.

It was estimated that the Japanese were hemmed into an area of eight square miles, with the Americans to the north, the sea to the south and a torrent of bombs and naval and artillery shells pouring out of the sky.

The Tokyo radio said this fire was heavy, but enemy broadcasts seemed more concerned with what the Americans would be up to next than with the Okinawan mop-up.

The Japanese said that more and more assault boats were moving into Okinawan waters and speculated that some fresh attack on the empire might be in the making.

For the marines and the infantry, the battle also was a race with the typhoon season. In the heart of the typhoon belt, the Okinawa area is raked by those storms at the rate of three to four a month through July, August and early September.

the Mediterranean; the destructive force of U. S. long-range heavy bombers, and the overall supremacy in European waters of the British home fleet.

Goering said the Germans failed to invade Britain after the fall of France because of the German navy's inadequate shipping space, an insufficient number of landing craft and fear of the British home fleet, but expressed belief than an invasion would have succeeded once a bridgehead had been secured because the British did not have enough bombers at that time.

Goering said that early in the war he saw the need of taking Gibraltar by slipping down through Spain and assaulting that British bastion from the rear. The Spaniards, he said, were friendly to the Germans because the "Germans had saved them from Communism."

Many Allied officers consider that the failure of the Germans to take Gibraltar constituted a blunder second in scope only to the failure to invade Britain.

Goering said he saw this and used all his persuasive powers on Hitler, but Hitler could not see it and in his madness turned from Gibraltar and plunged into Russia.

After the United States entered the war, success for the Allies became certain because of the irresistible numerical superiority of the Allied air forces, Goering added, declaring: "The Allies owe the success of the invasion to their air forces. They prepared the invasion, they made it possible, they carried it through."

of 24 top men in the German-American bund who were accused of conspiring to advise draft evasion, reversed by 5 to 4 in the conviction of a naturalized former German soldier accused of treason as a result of associating with saboteurs landed here by submarine (this was the first treason ruling in the court's history).

Ruled 6 to 3 that the army had a right to remove all Japanese from the west coast after Pearl Harbor, unanimously ordered release of an American woman of Japanese ancestry from a war relocation center, affirmed, 5 to 4, refusal by the Illinois supreme court to admit a conscientious objector to law practice.

The judicial conflict extended also to major labor cases.

Most talked-about decision of the term was the tribunal's 6-3 ruling invalidating a pair of Nevada six-week divorces. The supreme court said North Carolina's supreme court could properly find that a Nevada divorce was not binding in the Southern state because a bona fide residence was not established in the Western state.

The court likewise stirred up wide discussion in business circles by agreeing 5 to 4, to rule on Georgia's complaint that Southern freight rates are discriminatory.

KAISER'S

confidential chats with the president on the dangers of Nazism and its imperialistic and militaristic threats. The president and prince found themselves in complete accord.

Before the young couple departed for Germany, Mr. Roosevelt, as was sometimes his practice, bypassed official channels to convey a delicate proposal which, on account of its unofficial nature, could at any time be disavowed by either the proponent or the recipient.

He entrusted Louis Ferdinand with sounding out Ribbentrop on the possibility of a personal, heart to heart meeting of the American president, the German fuehrer, the Italian Duce and the British prime minister.

"Ribbentrop, of course, was to take the matter up with Hitler," Louis Ferdinand said. "If he (Hitler) reacted favorably, the proposal then could be transformed into an official one through the customary channels."

Returning to Germany late in the autumn of 1938 the prince prepared a careful memorandum to Ribbentrop setting forth, without revealing details, that he was charged with communicating certain information from the American president unofficially to the German government.

Ribbentrop had not even the courtesy to acknowledge receipt. Weeks passed.

Then a reply revealing Hitler's attitude toward the president came in quite a different manner than the one expected. Christmas was aproaching, so the young Hohenzollern sent a message to the Roosevelt's thanking them for their hospitality and extending the season's greetings.

Hardly had the telegram been handed in when a luftwaffe officer appeared. Louis Ferdinand was then serving in the German air force.

"I have been sent by Marshal Goering to demand how you dared communicate with our fuehrer's greatest enemy," the officer said. "Our fuehrer personally ordered the marshal to investigate. Unless you have a satisfactory answer you will be discharged in disgrace from the wermacht, with other consequences a possibility."

"What saved my skin at that time," the prince told me, "was the fact that we had sent messages not only to the Roosevelts but also to statesmen in other countries in which we had been entertained. That knocked the bottom out of the allegation that my cable was sent with deliberate intent to commit an affront against the German chief of state."

After this episode Louis Ferdinand ceased pressing Ribbentrop for a reply to his memorandum, as the depth of the cleavage between the American president and the German dictator now was revealed fully.

Louis Ferdinand said Roosevelt gave him the Hitler message orally.

way to clear the Cagayan valley, more than 500 Japanese dead were counted in central Luzon. Twenty-four Japanese and 301 Formosans were taken prisoner.

MacArthur's communique today said that on Mindanao further progress was made in liquidating the enemy garrison.

The spokesman reported that on this sector the enemy was attempting a limited withdrawal toward Mount Apo, southwest of Davao city, and was covering the movement with stiff rearguard action.

The battle of northeastern Luzon was taking on the nature of a race against time.

The Americans were racing against the July typhoon season, which threatens widespread floods along the Cagayan river.

Medium and attack bombers unloaded 252 tons of explosives on enemy personnel and supply areas in attacks throughout Cagayan valley.

Doughboys of the 37th Ohio division were loose on the valley floor after a bloody campaign of three and a half months during which Yank forces punched their way through northern Luzon mountain passes leading to the Cagayan country.

The hard-hitting 37th smashed Japanese resistance at the southern end of the valley and advanced 22 miles in 24 hours through the towns of Santiago and Echague, in Isabella province.

The Americans were hitting along a first class road which runs northward 150 miles to the port of Aparri on the northern coast of Luzon. The road criss-crosses the great Cagayan river which, during the typhoon season, frequently floods the broad valley.

The Sixth infantry division, which was with the 37th during the mountain fighting, turned to the northwest and sealed off another road leading into the valley.

In the northwest Luzon sector the 33rd division advanced along the Agno river gorge in the region of Tabio Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported the Yanks in that sector counted 400 additional Japanese dead.

The 38th infantry division, the First cavalry division and the 112th cavalry regimental combat team, killed 500 more Nipponese as they cleared out mountain positions.

Caves and pillboxes were being mopped up by the 24th infantry division in the Davao sector of Mindanao.

Army and navy fliers of the MacArthur command dumped fire bombs on Formosan targets, struck railroad facilities in Indo-China, hit shipping at Saigon and in Malaya waters and left a large fire burning along Shanghai's waterfront.

RIBBENTROP

and I can't tell you about them."

The note to Montgomery was composed after Ribbentrop arrived in Hamburg from Berlin. There was reason to believe that it was written only a day or two before his capture and that his reported statement that he had been preparing to surrender voluntarily had a semblance of truth.

Although Ribbentrop's English was grammatically correct in his Montgomery note, he misspelled the names of both Churchill and British Foreign Secretary Eden.

The letter was as casual in its form as a thank-you letter to a dinner party hostess, but it laid polite stress on the importance of Churchill and Eden learning what Ribbentrop had to say about Adolf Hitler's supposed "message."

It was learned today that Ribbentrop's mysterious Hamburg "landlady," arrested with him yesterday, listed her occupation on her identity card as a "secretary." She was still being held in the British field security headquarters in the center of Hamburg late this afternoon.

Verification of the contents of his note to Montgomery cleared up one of the major contradictions in the stories related by staff officers yesterday concerning his arrest.

A request by correspondents for detailed eye-witness descriptions of Ribbentrop's meeting with his sister, who identified him after his capture, and for accounts of other events after he was removed from the flat was refused by military authorities.

The sister, Frau Doctor Marie Jenke is assumed to be still under arrest.

tually isolated Japanese garrisons south of China itself.

Redeployment of American air power from Europe is only part of the Allied program against Japan, however. Current reports from London indicated that while a substantial part of the British Royal air force will be retained to back up Allied armies of occupation in Europe, up to 40 per cent of its personnel and equipment is to join in the campaign against the Japanese.

There is no clear pattern of British air deployment yet revealed. Presumably the R. A. F.'s main operations area will be in the Southeastern Asia Command zone. That includes the Bay of Bengal and reaches from Burma to Sumatra, but it is only in southern Burma at recaptured Rangoon that continental advance bases for the campaign to destroy the foe in Indo China, Thailand and on the Malay peninsula have yet been established.

Prior to British recapture of Rangoon there seemed some basis for the assumption that the Andaman Islands about midway between Rangoon and the northwestern tip of Sumatra would figure importantly in Admiral Mountbatten's plans. They lie some 600 miles off the Malay peninsula coast and could be useful as advance air bases.

It remains to be seen, however, if bolder action to shorten the Singapore recovery campaign is not now in prospect. Mountbatten's sea-air attack forces have ocasionally raided the northwestern tip of Sumatra in the past. British air power based there would command the approaches to Malacca strait and be in a position to cover amphibious operations aimed directly at Singapore.

Reopening of the Malacca passage from the Bay of Bengal to the South China sea to Allied use would tend to solve many supply problems. With American, British and empire air power soon to be available in such overwhelming strength for concerted action in the south, it might be achievable in less time and at less cost than now seems possible.

NAVY IS NEEDING STENOGRAPHERS

To interview, examine and appoint persons who respond to the navy's call for civilian stenographers, typists and clerks for the Washington headquarters Miss Oma Gronlech and Mrs. Mildred French, navy representatives, will be in Monroe, June 18 through 23, according to Frank D. Tournier, acting manager, branch regional office, Tenth Civil Service Region.

The navy representatives will be at the office of the U. S. Employment Service to interview all interested applicants. The minimum age is 17 1-2 years.

As the world's greatest sea and air power, the navy is conducting widespread recruitment for civilian stenographers, typists and clerks to handle the flow of headquarters' paper work, thus releasing uniformed personnel for other duty posts. Transportation and meals en route are at navy expense. Salaries are $146 to $164 per month for a 48 hour week. All interested persons are urged to make application for these positions.

Persons now employed in essential war industry at their highest skill may not be appointed.

Each transport carries its share of Louisiana-Mississippi men, they are the U. S. A. T. James Parker, formerly the luxury liner Panama, a 10,000 tonner carrying 2,890 enlisted men and 204 officers headed by General Melasky, the U. S. S. General Bliss, bringing 221 officers and 3,765 enlisted men; U. S. S. General Brooke, navy transport with 216 officers and 3,854 enlisted men; and S. S. Marine Fox, a WSA vessel, bringing 173 officers and 2,966 enlisted men.

Navy craft, bands and harbor whistles will participate in the army's welcome home to the men of the 86th. Also taking part will be 300 news and radio representatives from all over the United States as guests of Camp Kilmer.

With the arrival of the 86th division the army's redeployment program affecting 3,100,000 soldiers in the European theater gets under way in earnest.

The army expects the redeployment program to average about 3,000 debarkees per day through the New York port of embarkation throughout the summer.

"This is the start of the big parade to the Pacific," Maj. Gen. Homer M. Groninger, commanding general of the port of embarkation said—and the men from Louisiana and Mississippi were in on the start.

BLACKHAWK DIVISION WILL GET BIG WELCOME

NEW YORK, June 16. — (AP) — The battle-hardened 86th (Blackhawk) division, first combat division to return from the European theater, will be welcomed home tomorrow with the greatest demonstration yet given to returning troops in this war.

Harbor whistles will shrill, a WAC band will play aboard the army's gold and white "Welcome Home" ship and piers will be decked with red, white and blue as four grey navy transports bring the 14,289 officers and men past the Statue of Liberty.

These soldiers, who stormed into Germany with Gen. George S. Patton's Third army, will receive furloughs and then start "the big parade to the Pacific," in the words of Maj. Gen. Homer Groninger, port of embarkation commander.

Navy tugs and a blimp will escort the transports—the James Parker, the General Bliss, the General Brooke and the Marine Fox—and some 300 newspaper and radio men from all parts of the country will join the procession through the harbor on the vessel Sandy Hook.

Before the men of the 86th disembark they will turn in special telegraphic forms by which relatives will be notified of their arrival. There will be no opportunity, however, for them to greet relatives personally.

From New York the men will entrain for Camp Kilmer, N. J., and they will leave for their home stations by troop trains for redeployment after being given a brief orientation talk in the staging areas, fed, issued supplies and assigned temporarily to barracks.

Col. Cecil L. Rutledge, Camp Kilmer commander, noted that the 86th division left the United States only last February and said it was the army's policy to "bring back fresh troops to go out to the Pacific and knock out Japan."

Port of embarkation officials said soldiers returning from Europe by way of New York would average 3,000 a day during the summer. August is expected to be the peak month, with 400,000 passing through New York and other ports.

The 86th was the first division to cross the Danube after advancing into a heavy Nazi defensive west of Regensberg, Germany.

It was first activated Aug. 25, 1917, at Camp Grant, Ill., with Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Barry as commanding general. Its present commander is Maj. Gen. Harris M. Melasky, 52, a West Pointer, who was born in Austin, Tex.

The original personnel of the Blackhawk division was taken from Illinois and Wisconsin. Its present units hail from many states.

Gee, I wish she would do something besides listen to KMLB.

SCHOOL OF CHOICE FAVORED FOR VETS

College Presidents Favor Free Movements Of Returning Athletes

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—(AP)—College presidents of the nation would give the war veteran, returning to classrooms, the right to compete in intercollegiate athletics at the institution of his choice rather than restrict him to play for the school he previously attended.

A survey conducted by Horace Reggar of Tulane University, vice-president in charge of research for the American college publicity association (A. C. P. A.), revealed that presidents of 97 institutions favor letting the veteran athlete compete in sports at any institution he might choose. Only five presidents disagreed with them.

This expression of college heads, representing every section of the country, is in contrast with action recently taken by the Southeastern conference. The SEC would preclude a veteran who previously attended college from competing at another institution after his "GI" days are over.

While the presidents made it clear that they favored giving the veterans "every chance," as several put it, they were not for letting the bars down in any sense.

Ninety-eight presidents said they thought varsity time played by a veteran before entrance into the armed services should count against his years of eligibility. Ten others would give the vet a "clean slate."

The Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, vice-president of Notre Dame, said he felt veterans should be permitted to play at any school they may elect to attend, but warned that some "curbs should be put on the participation of the veteran, which will do away with the many abuses that will arise."

President Howard L. Bevis of Ohio State University said the "veteran should be treated exactly as any other transfer student." At Temple University, however, President Robert Livingston Johnson thought the veteran should continue competition only at the institution where he originally enrolled.

President Rufus C. Harris of Tulane, a member of the Southeastern conference, disagreed with the SEC's policy of the returning veteran.

"Many veterans have acquired new outlooks which will cause them to desire to change their pre-war plans for their life work," Dr. Harris said. "Some who were in college for one purse of training before going to war are now desirous of taking an entirely different type of training, a course that may not be offered at all by the institution of their original choice."

Ready-to-serve cereals, refreshened and slightly browned can pinch hit for the bread crumbs used in betty desserts. They give an especially good flavor and a "crunch" to the pudding.

POLYNESIAN WINS PREAKNESS STAKE

Hoop Jr., Second And Darby Dieppe Third In Pimlico Classic

BALTIMORE, Md., June 16.—Polynesian, a 12 to 1 shot, abruptly ended Hoop Jr.'s, bid for the turf's prized triple crown today by soundly whipping the Kentucky Derby winner in the 35th and richest Preakness at Pimlico.

Swinging into the lead after the first three-sixteenths of a mile, the son of Unbreakable 'ho inthe stables of Mrs. P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia, romped home with two-and-one-half lengths to spare under the guidance of veteran Wayne Wright to tack up his own claim to the three-year-old championship.

Hoop Jr., carrying the silks of Fred Hooper, never was far off the pace but he didn't have the answer to Polynesian's stretch drive when Wright pointed Mrs. Widener's colt for home and pulled up lame at the finish. As it was he had difficulty saving second money from Mrs. W. G. Lewis' Darby Dieppe, who came from far back on the rail to get into the money picture the same place he earned in the Derby.

Only a half-length separated the Derby champ and Darby Dieppe at the finish with The Doge, a rank outsider from the Pentagon stable in fourth place. Walter Jeffords' Pavot, co-choice of a crowd held to some 24,096 by the intense heat, finished fifth after running fourth from the break of the barrier.

Despite Polynesian's victory over Pavot in the Withers Mile, he was permitted to go postward at 12 to 1 as the perspiring fans rushed to get on the Hoop Jr. and Pavot band wagon. As the result he paid $26.00, $6.70 and $3.80 across the board. The Derby winner returned $3.20 and $2.60 while a $2 show ticket on Darby Dieppe was worth $4.30.

Although the turnout at the old Hilltop Course was below expectations, the betting on the Preakness set a new high with $347,343 going through the mutuels as compared to the previous record of $332,108 last year.

In chalking up his second straight triumph in four starts this year after finishing out of the money only once in 10 trips to the post as a two-year-old, Polynesian picked up a net purse of $68,170—a record for the classic three-year-old stakes. The gross purse of $87,670 also set a new standard.

Polynesian's time of 1.58 4-5 for the mile-and-three-sixteenths failed to menace Alsab's stake record of 1.57, but Mrs. Widener's brown colt won like a real champion. He caught the front running Hoop Jr. after going three-sixteenths of a mile and once in command he never gave ground as Wright took a snug hold on the reins and hand-rode him the remainder of the way.

TIGERS WIN TWO GAMES FROM SOX

Trout And Newhouser Chalk Up Victories Against Chicago Club

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP)—Detroit's victory twins, Paul (Dizzy) Trout and Harold (Hal) Newhouser, who between them won 56 games last season to keep the Tigers in the running for the American League pennant until the last day, turned back the Chicago White Sox in both ends of a double bill today, 7-5 and 6-1. The victories put the Tigers two and a half games ahead in the flag race.

Trout won his sixth victory of the season when he was sent in to relieve Buddy Overmire in the eighth. Newhouser scattered six hits in the nightcap, and would have had a shutout but for a wild pitch that put Chicago's catcher, Mike Tresh, on third. He scored the Sox only run on an infield play.

Detroit took advantage of Ed Lopat's wildness in the last inning of the opener to come from behind a 5-4 deficit to score three runs to win the 7-5 victory. Pinch-hitter Charley Hostetler singled after Lopat had walked two men and his relief hurler, Ted Ross, had walked another. Tresh bobbled the relay from the outfield to let the third run score.

NATS BLANK RED SOX

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—Mickey Haefner starred both on the mound and at bat today to help his Washington teammates trim the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 0, today before a score of 3,500.

Yank Terry, against whom Haefner pitched shutout ball, was charged with the loss.

Rick Ferrell opened the Senators' third with a double. Haefner laid down a bunt that John Tobin let roll and it stayed fair sending Ferrell to third. George Myatt singled to center, scoring Ferrell. When Culberson booted the ball, Haefner took third. Benny Steiner let Culberson's relay through for an error and Myatt made second. Haefner scored and Myatt reached third on Gil Torres' long fly.

SELMAN TO PLAY NAVY NINE TODAY

Missions Seek Revenge For No-Hit Victory Scored Over Them Earlier

The high flying Selman Field Missions will go after their eighth straight win here today when they take on the powerful Naval Air Training Center Hellcats from Memphis, Tenn., the team that shut the Missions out with a no-hit lass a few weeks ago. The game starts at 2 p. m.

It was announced by Buddy Blair, Mission manager, last night that big Dub Mattis will be on the Selman Field hill. Mattie went the route against the Navymen in the first tilt and gave up but six hits. The Blairman were held hitless by the perfect mound performance of Don Dunker, former Great Lakes and Indiana University twirler.

Mattis is one of the leading hurlers on the Selman staff with a 3-2 record for the season.

The visiting pitcher has not been named by the Hellcat mentor, Skip McDonald, but it would set up a double deck revenge is Dunker would take the Navy hill and the Missions were able to win against him. His no-hit performance against the Blairmen made history in baseball circles at the Memphis naval air station.

In the first game of the Army-Navy series, Dunker showed plenty of control, but poor support by his mates in the initial frame almost cost him the ball game when the hustling Missions showed across three run on three errors.

Yesterday Blair said that he will send his strongest possible line-up against the Hellcats this afternoon. Fresh from a double win over Camp Polk last week-end, the line-up revisions that were installed for those games will not be in effect this afternoon.

Resting this week, following the cancellation of Wednesday's scheduled game with Camp Beauregard because of heavy rains, Buddy Blair's charges should be in good shape to tangle with the Hellcats in this afternoon's matinee.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP)—It was 40 years ago today that Branch Rickey played his first major league baseball game for the Browns at Philadelphia. . . . The box score, provided by Historian Ernie Lanigan, reveals that Catcher Rickey (he wasn't the Mahatma then) didn't get a hit in three attempts. . . . That wasn't surprising because Rube Waddell fanned 11 Browns to win 10-1 and Rickey went down on strikes twice . . . If the youthful Branch was anything like the Rickey of today, a matter that probably interested him as much as his hits was the line: "Attendance—3,740." . . . That was Rickey's only game with the Browns that season but it also brought him his first big-time press notice . . . The Philadelphia North American scribe (possibly Charley Dryden) wrote "Sometimes Mr. Morgan is a pretty good pitcher, but he got started wrong. He was assisted by Mr. Rickey, said to be distantly related to the genius who invented things with gas." . . . That must have been a very distant relationship.

Over the Mountains

When Zane Moon, 16-year-old Kemmerer, Wyo., high school boy, won the Rocky Mountain A. A. U. 100-yard dash at Denver, he was invited by several teams to accompany them to the national championships in New York. . . . The school athletic fund couldn't stand the strain of financing such a trip, but Kemmerer sportsmen began sending in contributions and within a week Zane and his coach, Jack Burke, were assured that they could make the journey . . . Moon, who has run 100 in 9.6 seconds, admits he never has been extended to win a race.

Out For Victory

The Bowlers' Victory Legion, which has furnished the cash for such things as books, playing cards and fishing tackle for service men, is virtually certain to carry on after the war ends, probably to help in the rehabilitation program. . . . This year the B. V. L. has collected a quarter-million dollars—$65,000 more than last year—and still is going strong even though bowling has subsided for the summer.

Cleaning The Cuff

Joe Tepsic, who returned from Guadalcanal to become Penn State's prize package in baseball, finished a ten-game schedule with an even .500 average and a half-dozen major league scouts on his trail. But Joe, just a freshman, insists he won't play pro ball until he gets his college degree.

The Keesler Field Muss, athletic department estimates that soldier-golfers there took 1,800,000 swings with 32 sets of golf clubs in about a year.

DEVIL DIVER WINNER OF BELMONT FEATURE

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP)—Leading all the way, Devil Diver, Greentree stable's great handicap star, won the $50,000 added Suburban handicap at Belmont park today by three lengths over Mrs. Ethel B. Jacobs' Stymie.

Ridden by Jockey Eddie Arcaro, who was unable to ride Hoop Jr. in the Preakness, the six-year-old Greentree horse lugged top weight of 132 pounds over the mile and one quarter route in 2:01.

A 1 to 2 favorite, Devil Diver paid $3.00 to win and $2.30 to place. There was no show wagering.

Stymie beat William Helis' Olympic Zenith by a head for the place with the Circle M ranch's Great Rush last in the four-horse field.

A HOMER IS FUNNY

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP)—Cass Michaels, Chicago White Sox rookie shortstop, beams when he's asked his reaction after hitting his first major league home run.

"I was so surprised it was even funny that I could hit a ball like that," said the 19-year-old infielder. "I laughed to myself all the way around the bases. But I'd like to do it again—soon."

His homer, off Ed Klieman of Cleveland, was a well hit drive into the left field stands.

STEELE RETURNS IN 'TAG' MATCH

Curtis Will Be There But No Title Will Be at Stake Thursday Night

Jack "Stinger" Steele, former holder of the light heavyweight championship belt now in possession of Jack Curtis, will have to wait a while before he gets a chance to reclaim the crown, but he will be here Thursday night, however, as one of the participants in a tag team brawl that will include Champion Curtis, promoter Gus Kallio announced last night.

The tag scrap will feature the appearance of Steele and Buddy Knox against the combined talents of Curtis and Allen "Sailor" Parker, the promoter said.

Steele had issued a challenge to meet the winner of a title scrap last Thursday between Curtis and Knox. Curtis was the winner, but he declined to accept the challenge at this time, but agreed to appear in the tag scramble against the ex-champ who has not had a chance to reclaim the title since he lost it last fall to Curtis, a two-time holder of the crown.

The match this week promises to be a rough-and-tumble affair in which Steele and Knox, a pair of rugged villains whose brutality is hard to beat, find themselves against the local favorites who usually follow prescribed methods of wrestling in preference to villainous tactics.

Parker, once listed among the southern circuit's top villains, deserted the ranks of the bad men nearly two years ago and his bouts here since his reformation have won him a big following with Kallio's customers.

Once, too, Parker and Curtis were bitter rivals and their brawls of a few years back were among the best Kallio has ever been able to present. But in recent months, since Parker took Curtis' young brother, George, under his wing in the spring of 1944, and assisted him in the beginning of a ring career, the two older warriors have ceased their feuding and campaigned together.

The tag brawl will have a 90-minute time limit two falls to win.

Two-one-fall bouts, featuring main event principals, will open the night's program at 8:30 o'clock. Parker will meet either Steele or Knox in one of the introductory bouts, and Curtis will meet the opponent Parker fails to draw. The pairings for the one-fall scraps will be determined at the ringside Thursday.

RED SHIELD PING PONG TOURNEY SET FOR JULY 2

The Red Shield Club's championship ping pong tournament has been scheduled for the week of July 2, it was announced last night by Capt. Jack Hesketh, director, who said the tournament would be divided into two divisions for 'teen-aged boys.

First division of the tournament will be for boys 13 and 14 years old, and the second division will be for ping pong players 15 and 16 years of age. Awards will be made to the winners in each division.

The event is open to all members of the Red Shield Club, and membership in the club is open to all boys desiring to join.

THREE FORMER L. S. U. ATHLETES ARE KILLED

BATON ROUGE, La., June 16.—(AP)—Three former Louisiana State University football players have been reported killed in recent weeks, according to word received by L. S. U. athletic officials.

Lt. Gerald Hightower, ex-backfield star, has been reported killed in action in Le Shima in the Ryukus, and Navy Lt. Robbin Bennett former tackle, was killed in a plane crash on the west coast. Pvt. Bert Fowler, U. S. M. C. R. who played guard in 1940 was also reported killed in action.

PLENTY FOR SOLDIERS

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP)—American service men abroad, who like deep-sea fishing and who like to play cards, have plenty of tackle and pasteboards, says A. L. Ebersole of Washington, director and co-chairman of the Bowlers' Victory Legion.

Ebersole told the Legion's annual meeting yesterday that $255,000 had been raised through voluntary donations by the nation's bowlers during the 1944-45 season to purchase recreational equipment for servicemen abroad. Included in the purchases were 75,000 deep-sea fishing kits, 200,000 decks of playing cards and 33,000 books.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz traveled from Washington to Pearl Harbor after the disaster under the name of "Mr. Wainright" and wore civilian clothes to fool the Japanese agents who would have killed him for the secret reports he carried.

CHAPMAN TO PHILLIES

BOSTON, June 16.—(AP)—Ben Chapman, the converted outfielder, swapped his Brooklyn Dodger uniform today for Philadelphia Phillies togs and will hurl in the Quaker city in the future.

The Dodgers traded Chapman to the Phillies for catcher John Peacock. Chapman had won three and lost three since coming back to the majors late last summer from Richmond. In his last start, he beat the Phils Saturday.

Bucs Hold Narrow Lead League When Braves Defeat Boston Club

PITTSBURGH, June 16.—(AP)—Hopping on five Pittsburgh pitchers for 18 hits, the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the league-leading Pirates, 13-10, today to even the series.

Thanks to the Braves who defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers in Boston, the Bucs were able to maintain their precarious half-game hold on first place.

The Pirates knocked Harry Brecheen out of the box in the first inning with a five-run splurge on five hits, including a double by Bob Elliot.

BRAVES STOP DODGERS

BOSTON, June 16.—(AP)—Brooklyn's seven-game winning streak was literally thrown away when veteran Curt Davis wild pitched home the run that gave Boston a 6-5 victory over the Dodgers in 12 innings today.

Davis, the sixth Brooklyn pitcher, was put in a hole upon pitching to his first man when Shortstop Eddie Basinski erred on Stu Hofferth's grounder. A balk followed by a walk to Phil Masi, and Davis's low throw to second on Frank Drews' bounder filled the bases with none out. With Mike Ulisney batting, Davis uncorked his wild pitch which allowed Wietelmann, running for Hofferth, to score the decading run.

The Dodgers had fought an uphill battle to finally knot the count in the ninth. Trailing 5-

GIANTS BACK ON TOP

NEW YORK, June 16. — (AP) — The New York Giants went into a first-place tie with the Pittsburgh Pirates by defeating the Philadelphia Phillies, 7 to 2, tonight before a crowd of 14,582. Jack Brewer, making his first start of the year, went the route for the second victory of his career, both against the Phils.

Danny Gardella and Johnny Rucker led the Giants' sixteen-hit assault on three Quaker pitchers, Gardella driving in four runs with three singles. Rucker contributed a double and a two-run triple. Dick Barrett was charged with the loss, his seventh against four wins.

MOBILE, Ala., June 16 — (AP) — The Mobile's Bears new bridegroom, Pat Patterson, pitched a five-hit shutout tonight to defeat the Chattanooga Lookouts, 5 to 0, and win the third game of the series against two losses. Patterson was married at Lucedale, Miss., Friday night to Miss Edwina Cleveland of Mobile.

Little Mario Fero, diminutive Cuban shortstop, recently obtained from the Atlanta Crackers, slammed a two-run homer over the left-field wall in the second inning, some 340 feet from home plate.

WAMSLEY LEAVING OWLS FOR U. S. NAVAL ACADEMY

HOUSTON, Tex., June 16.—(AP)—Little George Wamsley won't be changing colors but there'll be a big difference in the schools.

He leaves the blue of Rice to don the blue of the U. S. Naval Academy July 1—and therewith departs the outstanding freshman athlete the wartime years projected into the Southwest Conference.

In one season of college athletics, Wamsley was an All-Southwest back, Rice's leading ground-gainer with over 500 yards and the spark of an Owl team that many believe would have won the conference title had not George fell victim to late season injuries that slowed his sharp speed almost to a walk.

Further, the all-state back of Robert E. Lee High School's state semi-finalists of 1943 contributed the longest run of the 1944 Southwest Conference season—an 84-yard sprint against Arkansas. He won the George Martin award as Rice's most valuable player.

TIGERS WIN

the Philadelphia Athletics a 4-3 victory in 10 innings today.

The defeat, only the first for Turner, against two victories this season, was the Yankees' 13th in 21 road games. Berry, who was credited with last night's triumph over the Yankees, picked up this game too, his fourth success against two defeats.

After trailing for seven heats, the Yankees tied the game 3-3 in the eighth and knocked starter Steve Gerkin from the mound.

BROWNS EDGE TRIBE

ST. LOUIS, June 16. — (AP) — The league champion St. Louis Browns defeated the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 3, in the twelfth inning of their second game of a series tonight.

With the bases loaded, Myron Haywortb batted safely toward third for the squeeze play, George McQuinn scoring the winning run.

Jeff Heath's homer with two on in the first gave Cleveland a 3 to 0 lead. In the fourth Milt Byrnes of the Browns tripled, then scored on Ed Klieman's wild pitch. Mark Christman then came home on Frank Mancuso's single.

In the ninth the Browns tied the score when Joe Schultz singled, scoring Don Gutteridge.

Jack Kramer, Browns' righthander, went the route, allowing nine hits.

AVERAGE COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15-16 inch cotton at ten designated southern spot markets today was: 35 cents a bale lower at 22.69 cents a pound. Average for the past 30 market days was 22.64; middling 7-8 inch average 21.35.

New York

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP)—Reports that the commodity credit corporation will start buying 1945 cotton at 22.15 cents at Memphis or 1-2 cent under market prices there had a depressing effect on cotton futures today. Commission house liquidation and hedging, on the belief that market prices are too high met only scale down support.

Private advices reported that mill buying of spot cotton was small this week.

Futures closed 20 to 40 cents a bale lower.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP)—The stock market, paced by rails, today reached new average heights for the past eight years on one of the largest Saturday volumes of 1945.

Idle cash continued to flow into transportation securities on the belief current income, heavy debt reductions and peace-time traffic prospects generally assured present and possibly expanded dividends.

Plus marks ranged from fractions to 2 points near the close with a few issues showing wider gains. Transfers were in the vicinity of 1,000,000 shares.

Railway bonds pushed forward. Grain futures were higher and cotton lower.

41—Money To Loan

We LIKE to MAKE LOANS

It's our business to say "Yes" as often as we can to requests for loans of $25 to $900 or more. Proof: 4 out of 5 GET the money they ask for. Consider these extras:

Small monthly payments; reasonable cost—$30 for 2 weeks costs only 40c; Between-Pay-Day loans; Loans-By-Mail . . . just write.

We'll appreciate the chance to say "Yes." Come in or phone today.

SELMAN WARNS COCKTAIL BARS

Provost Marshal Tells Them To Light Up Or Be Put Off Limits

An inspection of cocktail lounges in Monroe has been completed by Selman Field officials, and several places have been warned to provide additional lights in their bars and booths.

Maj. B. C. Bartlett, provost marshal at Selman Field, personally directed the inspections. If those places which were found to have been insufficiently lighted do not correct the condition, they may be placed off limits to military personnel.

"We have asked the cooperation of owners of these places several times," Major Bartlett said. "This campaign is being made in conjunction with our efforts to lower the venereal disease rate which materially affects this command. The rate here is abnormally high, and it must be reduced."

One member of the inspection party remarked that "it seemed a couple of places were almost blacked out. No one could tell what the customers were doing and a person wouldn't be able to recognize his next-door neighbor if he were in the next booth, nor could the customers tell what they were getting when they ordered a drink, until they tasted it."

Ordinances, passed last year, by both the city and the parish, provided that such places must be adequately lighted, and also that no unaccompanied women may enter the cocktail lounges, but it was said that there were several places in downtown Monroe which did not comply with these regulations.

BEST SELLER AUTHOR DIES

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., June 16.—(AP)—Princess Troubetzkoy, known by her maiden name of Amelie Rives as author of best sellers in the Nineties, died at 81 in a nursing home here last night. She had been in failing health for several years and lived in retirement at "Castle Hill," the Rives ancestral estate near Charlottsville.

IRRIGATION NOW BEING REQUIRED

Dry Spells Cause Need For Water On Summer Gardens

G. L. Tiebout
(L. S. U. Extension Horticulturist)

This is the time of the year when the rainfall must be supplemented by furrow irrigation as dry spells are likely to occur during the late spring, the summer and into the fall when our Victory garden crops will suffer. Yes, even die for need of moisture. Now is the time to make an investment in fresh water for our garden crops if there is a hydrant nearby and sufficient length of garden hose to reach the high points in the furrows between the garden rows so that gravity will cause the water from the end of the hose to flow gently under control by dirt dams across the furrows and fill the trenches between the ridges to water the roots of the plants from the sides of the ridges as well as from beneath. Plants or crops so watered are being irrigated by the furrow method to supplement the rainfall. Never should sprinkling from a fine spray be used in watering garden vegetables except when planting small seed in hills or drills on a water firmed ridge to make sure that a continuous supply of moisture is made available to supplement the moisture from beneath with that from above, thus helping nature to germinate the newly planted seed, which must have a continuous supply of moisture or the emerging roots will die and the effort be lost.

But the gardens of "tomorrow" must be planted "today" and July ushers in a seed planting period which extends throughout the summer and fall or as long as the hot weather continues. Over this period—intervals of hot weather and dry weather—we must plan to alter our seed-saving methods to fit nature's whims. First by planting the variety of the vegetable in mind which has been bred here in Louisiana by the Louisiana State University, using the Dixie variety of tomato as an eample.

In the Dixie we have a variety which resists the heat of the summer and you must plant it to the exclusion of any other variety, if you expect to make a fall crop, remembering to sow the Dixie seed in hills (2 feet apart) on water-firmed ridges (by rainfall or furrow irrigation) where the crop is to grow and mature, as there is no such thing as transplanting tomato plants at that season of the year, both on account of the heat and for sanitary reasons.

So right now select the ridges where you're going to plant the Dixies and make sure that they are as far away from your old (spring) crop of tomatoes as you can get, as the early blight and mosaic diseases in particular, are lying in wait to attack the new plantings and these diseases pass from the old plants to the new. Remember to spade the ridges for your tomatoes, at least 8 inches deep, putting down deep in the trench beneath the ridge, 10 pounds (pints) of Victory garden fertilizer to the hundred running feet of row.

Save plenty of the Dixie variety of tomato seed at home as you should be growing the Dixie variety in the spring as well. But if you haven't the Dixie seed, see a neighbor who has some or tell your favorite seed leader you're going to plant the Dixie variety of tomato this fall—and hereafter for that matter—and to kindly stock some of the Dixie which he can get from his New Orleans jobber.

Boyle's Notebook

By Charles Chamberlain
(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

HAMBURG, Germany—Lt. Colin Johnson, 25-year-old British artillery officer, has one of the strangest jobs in the army of occupation. He is in charge of a three-ring circus, a bomb-dazed outfit of artists and animals captured by Field Marshal Montgomery's troops.

He volunteered for the task a month ago and now has the circus ready to open business solely for Allied troops under a big top which rises from the ruins of Hamburg, one-time circus capital of continental Europe.

To get the show into operation again after an R. A. F. strafing plane mistook it for an enemy convoy, Colin has had to call forth all his knowledge of the circus business.

This was gained from carrying a pail of water to an elephant when a circus put up in his home town of Nottingham, England, 10 years ago.

Among the things he has had to dig up are 1,000 electric light bulbs, a tent which will accommodate 3,000 troops, 30 pounds of meat a day for the only remaining lion, and food for 50 horses, two elephants, one monkey, a dozen sheep and goats and 30 men and women artists.

The Big Top was about the only thing left of the internationally famous Hagenbeck circus. This was promptly requisitioned.

Then Colin found a supply of horse meat unfit for human consumption. He is rationing it out to Bruno, the mangy lion who is ravenously nursing himself back to health after shell splinters were removed from his hide.

Extra rations of fodder also were obtained for the horses and the two elephants which have been tugging at their chains ever since Elvira, a female elephant, stopped a stray machine gun slug in the strafing attack and died.

Colin is worried about Suzan, a sorrowful-eyed monkey that won't eat but just sits and stares since her mate was killed.

The horses are getting used to circus life again after plenty of food for the first time since the war began. Many of the fine animals had been taken by the Germans and used to pull army wagons. They still bear whip scars.

Most of the jugglers, trapeze artists, clowns and other performers are Poles, Czechs, Yugoslavs and a few Germans who continued circus work throughout the war. Their last stand was at Breslau in January.

They were en route to Lueneburg when they were strafed and then captured by the British Second army.

Colin said "It was quite a job finding 30 pounds of meat for the Lion. The Germans had been giving him about half a pound a week."

Now he's in quest of lump sugar. The animals trainers insist they need it to keep the horses and elephants contented.

One of the stars is "Bong the gentleman of the jungle. He is a big Pole who dresses in a monkey suit and swings from ropes at the top of the tent. So far Bongo has made but one request—a new monkey suit.

German rations are being given the performers. They get more than the average civilian because they are in the same classification as hard working coal miners.

They are paid from the proceeds of the carnival and sideshows set up near the Big Top. Only Allied troops are admitted to the grounds.

Another circus discovered at Hamburg is a traveling unit called the "Continental Express," a collection of 30 entertainers of European renown who were found in the Hamburg displaced persons center. It includes a troupe of Arab acrobats and 10 Russian ballet girls. The star is Alexander Guidos, an Austrian lightning sketch artist, juggler and musician.

Iron ore deposits have been discovered recently in Labrador and northern Quebec.

U. S. SYNTHETIC RUBBER BETTER

Found To Be Generally Superior To That Made By Germans

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—General superiority of American synthetic rubber over the German product has been established by United States technologists who advanced under fire with army units into Germany.

The findings will be reported to the American rubber industry soon. Persons familiar with them said today the United States techniques are superior in so many respects that there is little likelihood of widespread adoption of the German processes.

Petroleum experts who similarly hastened to wrecked oil refineries reported German methods "far less efficient" than those commonly used in the United States, the Petroleum Administration for War announced.

However, "many very interesting discoveries were made," said PAW, "which should improve petroleum techniques and contribute to the defeat of Japan"—which was the objective of all the industrial missions into the Reich.

Some of the rubber experts have returned to Washington and are reporting to the Rubber Reserve Company and the War Production Board.

The insignificant progress made in German techniques since the start of the war drew surprised comments from the rubber mission. In moth rubber products and processes the Germans—who were widely believed to have more great strides since the start of the war—have lagged behind the giant but youthful United States synthetic rubber industry, the report will show.

The standard German synthetic is so hard, for instance, that it must be pre-heated before being manufactured into tires or other goods. This slows fabrication by as much as 50 per cent in comparison with the general purpose, mass-produced American rubber, formerly called Buna S and now designated "GRS"—government, rubber, styrene type.

Some elements of the German operations will have interest for American producers, however, officials said, and the German formulae and processes will be given widest circulation.

The technicians traveled directly behind advance military elements in order to reach German plants before records were destroyed or hidden and plant executives dispersed.

The petroleum mission, made up of leading technologists from American oil companies, reported discovery of several underground refineries which were virtually completed and almost ready to go into operation before the war ended. They were built in caves, old mines, and other shelters from air attack. From the ruined above-ground plants tons of records were discovered and microfilmed for removal to this country for study.

The mission corroborated previous reports that the quality of German gasoline was inferior to that supplied the United Nations' forces, particularly aviation gasoline.

'CITY OF MONROE' PLASTERING JAPS

A B-29 Superfortress officially christened "City of Monroe" is giving the Japs plenty of trouble, according to a letter received from her pilot, Maj. Luther A. Jones, Jr., by the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. Major Jones' mother is Mrs. Luther A. Jones, who resides at 909 Trenton Street, West Monroe. The "City of Monroe" and Major Jones are stationed in the Marianas and have already made nine missions over the Japanese Empire.

The first raid, according to Major Jones, was on the oil refinery and storage plant at Otaka, which was followed by a raid on an aircraft factory at Kobe. The next two raids were two of the biggest fire raids of the war when the "City of Monroe" and her sister ships hit Nagoya. The next target was an aircraft plant at Hamamatsu. Tokyo then had two licks from the "City of Monroe" with a very large number of B-29's. Then followed a raid on Nagaya where industrial and naval targets were blasted. The last trip was a big fire raid on Otaka.

Major Jones is attached to the 20th airforce of B-29's which have been hitting Hirohito's subjects with tough Sunday punches every weekday recently.

In the 13th century, pickles were served as a main dish at the Famous Feast of King John.

SCENE: A DOCTOR'S OFFICE SEVERAL BLOCKS AWAY.

YES, GO ON, DOCTOR.

I HAD NO AUTHORITY TO DETAIN HER, MR. TRACY. BUT I REPORTED THE GUNSHOT WOUND AS SOON AS SHE HAD GONE. SHE WAS A VERY ATTRACTIVE GIRL.

OBVIOUSLY SOMETHING UNUSUAL HAD HAPPENED. SHE WAS VERY NERVOUS—ON THE VERGE OF HYSTERIA. THE NAME SHE GAVE, JOAN MARTIN, WAS UNDOUBTEDLY A PHONY.

YOUR DESCRIPTION FITS BREATHLESS MAHONEY ALL RIGHT!

I TOLD HER IT WAS IMPERATIVE THAT I DRESS HER WOUND TOMORROW. PERHAPS IF YOU WATCHED FOR HER THEN—

DOCTOR, RE ASSURED Y WON'T SEE T YOUNG LA AGAIN. SHE'S SMART TO C BACK.

H'M! WHERE DID THIS COME FROM, DOC?

WHERE DID WHAT COME FROM?

THESE LEAVES—WILLOW LEAVES!

THEY MUST HAVE DROPPED FROM SOMEONE'S CLOTHES. WHY THAT'S WHERE SHE TOOK OFF HER COAT.

NO—I CAN'T GO TO THE TREE FROM INSIDE THE GROUNDS. I MAY BE TAKEN FOR A PROWLER AND ARRESTED. I-I'VE GOT TO THINK OF SOMETHING.

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

I CAN'T COME DOWN NOW, COOKIE, I'M TOO BUSY!

COOKIE WAS SO DISAPPOINTED THAT YOU DIDN'T COME DOWN AND LOOK AT THE KITTENS

I WAS TOO BUSY!

WAIT, ALVIN! I WANT MY POP TO SEE OUR PILL-BOX, BEFORE WE KNOCK IT DOWN!

I CAN'T! IF I LET LOOSE OF THIS RAIN-PIPE NOW, THE WHOLE THING WILL COME DOWN

POP, QUICK, COME DOWN AND SEE OUR PILL-BOX

YOU HURT HIS FEELINGS, BY NOT LOOKING AT HIS PILL-BOX! HE WAS SO PROUD OF IT

I ALWAYS SEEM TO DO THE WRONG THING

IT'S JUST THAT YOU'VE BECOME TOO BUSY TO PAY ANY ATTENTION TO YOUR FAMILY

FROM NOW ON, I'M GOING TO BE A GOOD FATHER AND HUSBAND AND DO EVERYTHING THEY WANT ME TO DO

YOO-HOO! DAGWOOD, COME DOWN AND MEET MY LADY FRIENDS

MAYBE WE'D BETTER GO SOME PLACE!

WELL, SHE CAN'T YELL, WHILE SHE HAS MUMPS!

MYRTLE HAS THE MUMPS!

LOOKS LIKE ALICE'S SISTER IS REALLY GOING THIS TIME!

HOLD YOUR BREATH AND KEEP YOUR FINGERS CROSSED.

OH, LAURA! IT'S BEEN SO LOVELY TO HAVE YOU!

AND SHE'S BEEN GOING AROUND, KISSING ALL THE KIDS GOODBYE!

I SUPPOSE WE'RE ALL IN FOR IT NOW!

YOU GO HOME AND START PACKING! MAYBE I CAN GET FREDDIE'S RESERVATIONS!

TELL ME, ARNOLD, DOES IT HURT WHEN I PRESS RIGHT THERE?

IF I WERE FREDDIE, I'D GO RIGHT AHEAD!

MIGHT AS WELL HAVE MUMPS THERE, AS HERE!

BUT, SLUG! YOU'VE HAD THE MUMPS!

ONLY ON ONE SIDE!

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

TARZAN STEPPED BACK AND SURVEYED THE IMPOSING TRAP HE AND HIS PYGMY WARRIORS HAD CONSTRUCTED. "WHEN GORU COMES," HE ANNOUNCED, "WE SHALL BE READY FOR HIM!"

HIGH IN A TREE NEARBY, A DROWSY LITTLE MONKEY AWOKE WITH A START---AND CRIED TERROR-STRICKEN AT THE FRIGHTFUL MONSTER WHO STALKED THE JUNGLE BELOW HIM!

A WILD CLAMOR AROSE FROM THE BIRDS AND BEASTS AS TARZAN'S LITTLE FRIEND RACED TO SPREAD THE ALARM.

BEFORE THE LAIR OF GORU-BONGARA, TARZAN WAS SUDDENLY ON THE ALERT, LISTENING INTENTLY TO THE COMMOTION.

"INTO THE TREES--QUICKLY!" HE CALLED TO HIS SQUAD. "THE MONSTER COMES!" THUS, WHILE TARZAN REMAINED BELOW---

---THE PYGMIES SCRAMBLED TO SAFETY HIGH ABOVE THE GROUND.

MEANWHILE, GORU-BONGARA, WEARY OF HIS VIGIL, AND RAVENOUS WITH HUNGER, WAS STALKING THE JUNGLE IN SEARCH OF PREY

CRASHING RELENTLESSLY THROUGH THE FOREST, THE 'TERRIBLE ONE' BURST INTO THE CLEARING--AND STOPPED SHORT. A HIGH, PIERCING SCREAM ISSUED FROM THE MONSTER'S THROAT.

BEFORE HIM STOOD THE MOTIONLESS FIGURE OF A HATED ENEMY--TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE!

BUT,SHERIFF HALIBUT! YOU FOLKS HAVE TAKEN SANDY AND ME RIGHT INTO YOUR OWN HOME--
WELL,THE LAW JUST SAYS YOU MUST BE KEPT IN JAIL---
OUR HOUSE IS PART OF THE JAIL. SO IT'S ALL LEGAL--- BAH! FINE THING! WHAT'S THIS TOWN COMING TO? THROWING BABIES INTO PRISON! YOU NEVER KILLED THAT OLD DRAGON!
OH, WELL--YOU KNOW HOW TH' LAW IS, MAW-- THEY SAY JUSTICE IS BLIND---
SURE! BUT IT DOESN'T HAVE TO BE JUST PLAIN STUPID!
GEE, SANDY! WHAT A BREAK! 'STEAD O' TREATIN' ME LIKE A CRIMINAL, THEY TREAT US JUST LIKE COMPANY!
"DADDY" ALWAYS SAID THERE ARE LOTS MORE DECENT FOLKS IN TH' WORLD THAN YOU'D SUSPECT--
"DADDY" CAME TH' CLOSEST TO BEIN' A REAL FATHER TO ME! GEE! IT MUST BE SWELL TO HAVE FOLKS OF YOUR OWN!

MOON MULLINS by Frank Willard
HA!
AW, GEE! I FEEL KINDA BAD ABOUT KNOCKIN' THAT POOR LITTLE SPARRER OFF AT THAT
BUT AFTER ALL, IT DIDN'T LOOK SO SAD ABOUT TAKIN' THAT POOR LITTLE WORM FOR A RIDE
OH, WELL, I'LL DO SOMETHIN' FER TH' SPARRER IT'D NEVER OF THOUGHT OF DOIN' FER TH' WORM.
I'LL GIVE IT A DECENT BURIAL BOX
IN FACK, I THINK I'LL EVEN THROW IN SOME CIGARS
NOW WHO TH' HECK SPILLED THESE SMOKES ALL OVER TH' FLOOR?
I DID!
ALL I WANT IS THREE, OR FOUR GIMME THEM CIGARS!
OKAY- BUT YOU KNOW WHERE YOU'LL GO WHEN SAINT PETER FINDS OUT ABOUT THIS, MOON
ABOUT WHAT?
WHEN HE OPENS THAT BOX AND DON'T FIND NO CIGARS IN IT.

UGH! I FEEL CREEPY. NO SOONER DO I OPEN STELLA DIG THIS DIRTY, OLD SEALED ENVELOPE OUT OF HER MATTRESS THAN SHE DIED--
WHY DON'T YOU OPEN IT, HELEN?
I DON'T KNOW. DOESN'T SEEM RIGHT, SOMEHOW--
WELL, OF ALL--- IT'S YOURS-- SHE GAVE IT TO YOU!!
IF ANYBODY GAVE ME THAT SHE'L ABOUT THE OLD COUNT OF MONTE CRISTO-- THE OLD GUY DYING AND TELLING THE OTHER FELLER WHERE TO FIND ALL THOSE JEWELS--- IT'D BE TERRIBLY CURIOUS--
YOU ARE! WELL, YOU TALKED ME INTO IT. HERE GOES!
POOR OLD STELLA! HER ILLNESS MUST HAVE AFFECTED HER MIND---
QUICK! WHAT'S IT SAY!?
"DELIVER TO BEARER, ONE SMALL PACKAGE"- THEN THERE'S AN ADDRESS- 1570 49 TH STREET--
I KNOW JUST ABOUT WHERE THAT IS! IT'S A CHEAP ROOMING HOUSE DISTRICT NEAR THE RAILROAD.
DON'T TEAR UP THAT RECEIPT, HELEN! IT MIGHT BE VALUABLE!
-OH, OK. I'LL LOOK INTO IT WHEN AND IF I EVER GET OUT OF HERE-
BUT I'LL GUARANTEE IN ADVANCE THAT IT'LL BE A WASTE OF TIME--
HELEN! WE'RE GETTING COMPANY- THE GLAMOR GHOUL!
THIS WAY BLEACHE- YOU'RE WANTED IN THE WARDEN'S OFFICE.
NOW, WHAT HAVE I DONE?
HALF HOUR LATER-
GALE! GUESS WHAT!?
W-WHAT?
MY LUCKY DAY! A PULL FROM THE GOVERNOR! I'M F-FREE!!

BEFORE ATTEMPTING TO PADDLE THEIR BOAT PAST THE GAP GUARDS AT THE INLET, PYTHON AND JACK CREPT UP ON THEM---
PYTHON CHOKED THOSE GUARDS, ONE BY ONE, WITHOUT A SOUND,
PSST! HE'S POWERFUL. ALL RIGHT-- I'VE BEEN AFRAID OF HIM EVER SINCE HE WAS INTERNED IN OUR PRISON--
SMILIN' JACK
I BOIL WHEN I THINK HOW HE MUSCLED IN ON OUR ESCAPE PLOT, AND IS CROWDED IN THIS LITTLE BOAT WITH US--
.. WHAT IF WE SHOULD RUN SHORT ON PROVISIONS BE-FORE WE REACH ONE OF TH' LIBERATED ISLANDS?
HE MIGHT CHOKE US-- THROW US TO TH' FISH AND KEEP ALL THE FOOD AND WATER FOR HIMSELF--
OVER MY DEAD BODY HE WILL--
I ADMIRE YOUR SPUNK, JACK, BUT IN YOUR WEAKENED CONDITION YOU WOULDN'T HAVE A CHANCE WITH THAT MONSTER--
I'VE HAD A HARD DAY-- I FEEL KINDA TIRED FROM STRANGLING ALL THOSE JAPS-- LET'S EAT! I'M HUNGRY--
SIT STILL! DON'T OVERTURN TH' BOAT, PYTHON! WE'RE HAVING ENOUGH TROUBLE KEEPING RIGHT SIDE UP IN THIS ROUGH SEA AS IT IS---
SHUT UP! I AM CAPTAIN OF THIS BOAT-- LET ME AT THAT FOOD--
AS PYTHON GRABS THE FOOD A WAVE HITS THE BOAT AND KNOCKS MOST OF IT OUT OF HIS HANDS---
NOW LOOK WHAT YOU HAVE DONE, YOU BIG, CLUMSY APE-- I TOLD YOU TO SIT STILL AN' LET ME HAND YOU THE FOOD---
THAT ONE SMALL PACKAGE IS ALL THERE IS LEFT--
SO WHAT!! IT'S ENOUGH FOR ME!
